Sausalito's 'Hermit Crab' Sails Away

Retired Man Off On Trip Of Lifetime

By BRUCE COLEMAN

A Sausalitan who likens himself to a hermit crab, with his shell being his boat, sailed yesterday afternoon from Sausalito Yacht Harbor for points south and east.

Bradford Simmons, 62, who retired in September as a senior engineering designer for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., has lived aboard his craft, Vaeringer II, for five years in Sausalito.

PEA IN POD

Asked how long he will be away, he replied, "I expect it to be a way of life, like the hermit crab. He finds his shell and takes it with him wherever he wants to go."

Simmons said he rattled around the house like a pea in a pod after his two children were reared. "It seemed a natural thing to trade the house for a boat.

The 42-foot cutter, was purchased in San Pedro five years ago. Simmons has tested it frequently outside the Golden Gate, preferring winter sailing because it is not so windy as in other seasons.

SON IN ROME

Simmons' son, Sherman, is a captain in the Air Force and is stationed at Rome, N. Y. His daughter, Mrs. Pamela McKee, lives in San Rafael.

Accompanying Simmons to San Diego will be Hal and Margaret Roth of 16 Ridge Avenue, Mill Valley. Roth is a freelance photographer.

Joining the ship in January in San Diego or Mexico will be Bill Browning, 20, of 164 Santa Rosa Avenue, Sausalito. Browning studies photography at the San Francisco Art Institute and plans to stay aboard the cutter through the Caribbean.

PHOTO PROJECT

He said he will do a photographic project for the art institute, for which he is to earn 10 units credit.

Another crew member, a Floridan, will join Simmons in San Diego also.

The skipper said he has found that in many spots in the world the American dollar is valuable. "There's a little island in the Caribbean," he mused, "where you can get board and room for $3 a day."

The Vaeringer was built in 1928. Its name is Nordic for "Roamer" or "Wanderer." The vessel has an 85 horsepower diesel auxiliary engine and a

Navy Tells Dramatic Story Of Pilot's Escape From Reds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Navy jet pilot held captive almost three months by Laotian Reds says he escaped with three Laotian prisoners by breaking out of a barbed-wire stockade.

Lt. Cmdr. Charles Klusmann, 30, says he was in solitary confinement nearly two months and after his escape spent three days in leech-infested jungles before reaching friendly forces.

From the outset, he says, he was determined to escape or die trying.

The Communists said Klusmann signed a statement favorable to their cause but the Navy says his conduct throughout was "entirely satisfactory." It says the document he signed for the Communists stated only that he had been adequately fed and cared for and requested his release.

A Distinguished Flying Cross was given his wife, Sara, 30, in his stead last June.

The story of Klusmann's flight from the Pathet Lao Prison had not been made public until the Navy released a 30-page report yesterday.

Since his return Klusmann has been promoted and returned to active duty at nearby Miramar Naval Air Station. He was a lieutenant when he was shot down over Laos June 6.

CHARLES KLUSMAN
Escape from Reds

The Navy's story:

Klusmann was piloting an unarmed photo reconnaissance plane over the Plaine Des Jarres when he was hit by heavy ground fire near Khang Khay and had to eject.

He fell through a tree parachuting to earth and twisted his right hip and foot and scratched his arm. Klausmann tried to escape through the jungle but was captured by Communist troops.

He was taken to a mud hut with a thatched roof and held there in solitary confinement 54 days. He tried to get out but could not.

"After this first attempt to escape, I found that, well, I was pretty depressed," Klausmann said.

It was at this time apparently that Klusmann signed the document. Said the Navy report in summary:

"The Navy concludes that during his imprisonment, while very ill, under the influence of drugs, and after a prolonged period of physical and mental stress, Lt. Klusmann had signed a document, but that no military information had been divulged, that no intentional violation of the Code of Conduct had occurred."

The report said Klusmann "has been directed for security

President Launching 2 Programs

U.S. Highways, Desalting Water Latest Target

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson has made final decisions on two more 1965 programs: To try to beautify American highways and, by 1969, to radically improve methods of purifying salt water.

These ambitious plans, a part of the "Great Society" proposals Johnson will submit to Congress next year, were revealed yesterday by Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall after a day-long visit at the LBJ Ranch 15 miles west of here.

CABINET VISITORS

Udall, who flew back to Washington last night, was succeeded in the parade of Cabinet visitors by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

The interior chief, despite a sniffy nose, seemed pleased with his first visit to the chief executive's 400-acre ranch. Asked by newsmen if he expected to remain in the Cabinet, he responded: "Yes, I do. And after my visit today I'll stay with a real sense of excitement."

After his ranch stay Udall unveiled at White House press headquarters in Austin, 65 miles from the ranch, a series of what he termed "hard news" items.

WATER PLANS

1. Johnson told him to seek a 16-million-dollar supplemental appropriation in January for research on desalting and purifying sea and brackish waters, with the aim of bringing costs down to 25 or 35 cents per 1,000 gallons by the end of the president's four-year term in 1969.

The current annual appropriation is 12 million dollars, and the present cost through experimental desalting plants is $1 per 1,000 gallons.

2. The administration will recommend as part of its "Great Society" program a plan to beautify and landscape more than 40,000 miles of federal subsidized interstate highways. Without disclosing details, Udall predicted this will be "very exciting."

3. Johnson has ordered Udall and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to make an inventory of the 24 million acres owned by the Defense Department to determine which properties, if eventually declared surplus, should be made a part of a national conservation program as federal seashores, recreation areas, national parks or wildlife refuges.

Udall noted that just this week McNamara had announced plans to shut down bases involving 375,000 acres. He said this land is part of "the national estate" and should not be auctioned off to

Nation To Honor Memory Of JFK

Assassination Date Year Ago Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans from every walk of life gather this weekend across the land to honor the memory of a fallen leader — John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

It was just a year ago tomorrow that the harsh bark of a rifle was heard above the tumult of a Dallas street, and an assassin's bullets claimed the life of the nation's 35th president.

For his successor, President Lyndon B. Johnson, tomorrow will mark a "Day of National Rededication."

In a proclamation which echoed the words of Kennedy's famed inaugural address, Johnson said:

"On that day let the word go forth, to friend and foe alike, that the vision of John F. Kennedy still guides the nation which was the source and the object of his greatness.

CHURCHES, HOMES

"In churches and homes everywhere . . . let us rededicate ourselves to the pursuit of those ideals of human dignity in which he believed and whose course he so brilliantly illuminated."

For John Kennedy's widow it will be a quiet weekend. The beautiful young mother whose courage in face of tragedy shone forth like a beacon during those dark November days a year ago has written that she has found no consolation for the loss she suffered.

Sen.-elect Robert F. Kennedy and his wife planned to attend a memorial mass for his brother at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Cathedral in Washington. It was at St. Matthew's that John Kennedy's funeral was held.

FRIEND AT MASS

The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, CSC, a longtime friend of the family and former president of the University of Notre Dame, will be the celebrant at the mass.

In New York, a city which took Kennedy to its heart, Mayor Robert F. Wagner asked all citizens to observe a moment of silence at 1 p.m. (EST) tomorrow—the time of John Kennedy's death a year ago.

At noon no planes will land or depart at the great airport renamed in his honor, and all passengers and employees there will stand silent for a minute.

Wild Ride Is Ended In Ditch

Four Novato teen-agers went for a wild ride last night, according to the San Rafael Police Department.

It ended with their car in a ditch next to Manuel T. Freitas Parkway in Terra Linda and all four of them behind bars.

Police said they arrested the youths near the wrecked car after they investigated the hit-and-run of two parked cars on nearby Montecillo Road.

Booked at juvenile hall were three 17-year-old youths, including the driver. An 18-year-old companion was booked at county jail on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

The driver, whose friends said had donned a crash helmet at the start of the two-hour ride, was charged with hit-run, drunken driving and a curfew violation.

Two others were charged with curfew violations, and one was also charged with drunkenness.

The 18-year-old, Gregg Ernest Bartolomei of 1418 Buchanan Aveune, Novato, told police the driver put on his helmit and fastened his seat belt as they left Novato at 9 p.m.

Bartolomei said the youth began speeding in spite of his passengers' protests, and refused to stop to permit Bartolomei to get out.

At about 11 p.m., police said, the car crashed into a pair of

Bobby Is Now His Own Man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert F. Kennedy, once the grief-stricken younger brother, is his own man today.

He is embarking on a career as senator from New York, a job some political veterans predict may lead him some day to the White House.

One year ago, he was confident—even unconcerned — about his future in government. As long as his older brother, John F. Kennedy, was president, Bobby would have a job to do.

He did not want to serve another four years as attorney general after the election. He had shown interest in problems of the nation's youth and in foreign affairs, and he seemed headed for a job in the state department.

The previous three years had been full ones for a man his age. As head of the justice department, he had fought to promote civil rights and shatter organized crime. And as his brother's most intimate and trusted adviser, he had played a major role in the handling of the Cuban missile crisis and other decision making at the highest level.

The assassination shook Bobby deeply. His old aggressiveness and determination were lost. He seemed distracted, depressed, broken.

As time wore on, and the

Surfers Get In Swim On Bolinas Problems

Surfers and Bolinas residents aired their problems at a crowded meeting in the Bolinas Community Center last night and came up with some specific plans they hope will alleviate the problems.

All present agreed that the rapid development of the sport at Bolinas beach made expanded changing room and parking facilities imperative. Bolinas Community, Inc., leaders and representatives of the North Point Surfers agreed to meet with supervisor-elect Thomas T. Storer as soon as possible.

Melton Ferris of Bolinas Community, Inc., said that county parks and recreation and health departments were asked to send representatives to the meeting but the only county department represented was the sheriff's office.

The complaints of property owners ranged from trespassing and property destruction to profanity and bad conduct.

After discussion it appeared that surfers were not the only ones to blame, particularly for property damage caused by people building bonfires at night.

"By that time we're too pooped to still be at the beach," said one surfer.

The trespassing appeared to be mostly the overflow from the beach onto property nearby. Some residents complained that people were changing clothes in their front yards.

At peak periods there are up to 3,000 people at the beach in summer, said Ferris, and only one toilet and negligible parking space to handle them.

North Point Surfers president Dennis Cuyler, also a Bolinas resident, described a program of self-discipline the surfers have instituted. They began cleanup campaigns in the late summer and plan to continue.

Cuyler said the surfers hope to exert a calming influence on other young people at the beach.

About 200 residents and surfers were at the meeting last night.

Storm Threatened Ships Home Safe

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (UPI) —Twenty-three ships of a fishing fleet trapped off the coast by an Atlantic storm chugged safely into port today, and another was towed to safe harbor by a coast guard cutter.

One other vessel of the 25 boat fishing fleet was limping slowly toward port with a hole in its hull.

Attorney Says Hopps Perjured Self

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Defense attorney in the Dorfman extortion trial said yesterday that Stewart B. Hopps, former Belvedere insurance executive, had perjured himself during the trial in hopes of gaining favors for himself from the government.

Attorney Harvey Silets of Chicago, defending Allen M. Dorfman, 38, and his stepfather, Paul, 62, told Federal Judge William T. Sweigert yesterday that Hopps embroidered his testimony hoping to get assistance from the government in modification of an 18-month sentence on a mail fraud conviction in Baltimore last year.

During the trial, in its sixth day yesterday, Hopps has testified that he received a threatening phone call, allegedly from Allen Dorfman, at his Belvedere mansion Sept. 5, 1962.

Two other prosecution witnesses have declared they heard no threats of violence made by Dorfman against Hopps.

Mare Island, Hunters Point Merger Is Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Rear Adm. E. J. Fahy said yesterday the merger of the San Francisco and Mare Island naval shipyards "will be immediately effected."

The new administration will be called the Bay Area Navy Yard," Fahy said. There will be two divisions, one at Hunters Point and one at Mare Island.

Rusk, Gromyko Might Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) —Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko may meet in New York in about 10 days for the first high-level talks on U. S.-Soviet relations since new leaders took power in Moscow last month.

Soviet diplomats here say Gromyko presumably will attend opening sessions of the U. N. General Assembly, as he has in past years.

Loch Ness Monster Defector? Soviets Say Beast Is In Siberia

MOSCOW (AP)—A sea-going monster with a long tail has been spotted in remote Siberia, the Soviet government news agency Tass said today.

Geologists had seen the "huge animal" twice at Lake Haiyr near Laptevykh Sea in a region called Yakutia, the agency said.

The animal had a small head, a long, gleaming neck, jet-black skin and a vertical fin on its back, Tass said.

Tass said geologists on a Moscow University expedition to the region had seen the animal on shore and in the water.

But because they had no camera, they made drawings of the creature.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Soviet publication, printed drawings of the reported beast today.

Chinese Give Russ The Word

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press

Red China has delivered its ultimatum to the Soviet Union: Plug up the holes in the Iron Curtain or the Communist movement will be irrevocably divide into two camps.

No other construction can be placed upon a 3,000-word statement from the theoretical journey Red Flag broadcast by Peking today. As matters stand now, it means the Soviet-Chinese dispute not only will continue, but probably will grow more intense.

Peking, in breaking a sullen silence on its reception of the new regime in the Soviet Union, probably has thrown a scare into the Communists of both Eastern and Western Europe.

Almost openly, Red Flag was asking for a continuing and thorough going purge in the USSR to weed out all those Communists who supported Nikita Khrushchev's policies, and would be bad news for the Communist-ruled countries of Eastern Europe, and equally bad news for West European Reds for whom Stalinism had proved a heavy liability.

The Chinese statement was a recitation of Peking's terms for playing ball with Moscow within a unified world Communist movement, but the terms are just about as tough as they can be. Indeed, if the Chinese conditions were met, the present regime of party chief Leonid Brezhnev and premier Alexei Kosygin in the USSR could not last last long.

Peking heavily assailed virtually all the domestic, Communist party and foreign policies developed in the Khrushchev era.

In almost so many words, Peking demanded that Moscow reassess and reinstate Stalinism. It demanded an end to cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States and virtually demanded abrogation of the Moscow treaty partially banning nuclear tests.

It demanded that the Russian once again anathematize President Tito of Yugoslavia and toss him out of the Communist family. It demanded that policy of the Soviet 22nd Party Congress dealing with consumer goods development and the theoretical course of Soviet Communism be scrapped as hopelessly "revisionist."

And it demanded a purge in the USSR. This was implicit in its warning that there must be no "Khrushevism without Khrushchev."

The Soviet Union, as matters stand now, can meet none of these terms. Meeting all of them is utterly out of the question. Even if there should be a successful new palace revolution in the Kremlin by an alliance of Stalinists and military men, it could hardly hope to go back all the way to Stalin after the past decade of Soviet social development.

500-Pound Safe Theft Is Reported

Theft of a 500-pound safe containing $1,689.75 in checks and cash was reported to Marin County sheriff's officers yesterday by the Housing Authority of Marin County in Marin City.

Marge Prescott, a bookkeeper for the authority's administration office, told deputies she discovered the loss shortly after arriving for work yesterday morning. The four-foot-tall safe containing $522.20 cash and the remainder in checks was apparently wheeled out through a forced rear gymnasium door, officers said, and toted off in a pickup truck or truck.

According to Inspector Harold Sleezer, entry was made through the same door sometime early yesterday. The intruders used a dolly truck kept in the gymnasium, he said, to haul the safe off.

No vehicle tracks were found, the officer said. He speculated it would have taken at least two men to load the safe, which also contained a reflex camera and other papers.

Inspector Sleezer said a previous burglary attempt was made in February, 1963, but intruders failed to gain entry through the office roof. He said largest single check in yesterday's loot was for $792.

IN HIGH SPIRITS

Rooters for the Terra Linda football team hiked from their school to the College of Marin football field in Kentfield today to spread their optimistic spirits with signs, banners and cheers. It is obvious from this picture that they expect their Trojans to sink the Pirates of Sir Francis Drake High School. The championship game was played this afternoon. (Independent-Journal photo)

dren, will celebrate a memorial mass in the new English-language liturgy tomorrow at Boston's Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The service will be televised.

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in the Boston suburb of Brookline, Mass., will hold memorial ceremonies at his birthplace.

Pulitzer prize-winning historian Samuel Eliot Morison will speak at a memorial mass Sunday in St. Brigid's Church in historic Lexington, Mass. His appearance will mark the first time a non-Catholic has spoken at a mass in the church.

Chicago's Holy Name Cathedral will be the scene of a special memorial mass offered by the "Voice of the Retarded," a group representing families that include retarded children. Several busloads of retarded children from the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. School for the Retarded in Chicago were scheduled to attend with their parents.

But it will not be only the late president's fellow Catholics who will honor his memory. There are memorial services planned at Protestant churches and synagogues throughout the nation.

Peace Corps director R. Sargent Shriver Jr., the late president's brother-in-law, urged the corps' volunteers to renew their dedication to the ideals of the man who founded the organization—John Kennedy.

"In a sense, we're still working for John Kennedy and for what he believed in," Shriver said in a letter to corps members scattered around the world. "He lived long enough to see one of the great ideas of his administration come to fruition in 46 nations around the earth . . .

"In the nations where you are working, old griefs spur the quest for progress and enlightenment. Let this old grief (at Kennedy's death) spur our own efforts as well."

I-J Publisher To Be Honored

Justus F. Craemer, co-publisher of the San Rafael Independent-Journal and long time president of the California Press Assn. will be named president emeritus of the group during its annual winter convention at the Clift Hotel in San Francisco Dec. 4.

Craemer, who was elected president of the association in 1943 after serving as vice president for 20 years, lives with his wife, Agnes, at 414 Woodland Road, Kentfield.

Among the speakers at the convention will be Wishard Brown, assistant publisher of the Independent-Journal.

Barber Elected President Of Novato Schools

Dan H. Barber was elected president of the newly formed Novato Unified School District this morning.

Mrs. Leonora Dougherty was elected vice president, William H. Kirk, secretary and William Vandergriff, trustee representative to the Marin County School Boards Assn.

The seven trustees were sworn in by County School Supt. Virgil Hollis. Trustees voted to name the district the Novato Unified School District.

The new district combines the San Jose School District and the old Novato Unified School District. The name chosen today will cause some confusion since the old Novato unified district will continue to function until the end of the present school year.

bathtub installed by the former owner.

Simmons said the tub is unusual on a sailing ship of such size. He stored hatch covers in it while in Sausalito and took his baths at the Sausalito Yacht club.

Looking at the Kerosene heater he was using in the main cabin to take the nip off the Sausalito air, he said, "I'll probably be using the tub in the tropics."

parked cars on Montecillo Road. One, a 1965 Volkswagen, was owned by Philip V. Corey Jr. of 857 Montecillo Road. Officers were checking today to learn who owned the other car, a 1955 Ford.

The driver allegedly drove on after hitting the parked cars and proceeded toward Freitas Parkway. Turning left on to the parkway, the car went into the ditch.

Woman Hurt In Fall Cleaning Hearth

A 74-year-old San Rafael woman was hospitalized after she fell on a metal fireplace grating at 10 a.m. yesterday, cutting her left leg.

Nina Clivio of 113 Convent Court was in satisfactory condition at San Rafael General Hospital today. San Rafael police said she was cleaning the fireplace at her home when she fell.

BOBBY

scars began to heal, Bobby did some hard thinking about his future. He knew he could not count on getting a government job that fulfilled his interests. He felt he had to establish himself as an individual.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, in a way, helped him decide his next move. When Johnson ruled him out publicly for consideration as his vice presidential running mate, Bobby decided he could not longer let the decisions of others influence his future.

He quit to run for the Senate seat of Republican Kenneth Keating of New York.

The hard-fought campaign that brought him victory also brought back Kennedy's rugged, highly personal drive. And it brought him something else that was lacking before Nov. 22, 1963.

"He is more his own man now," said one close friend. "He is more mature and thinks more in terms of his own future now."

He thinks now of doing his best in the Senate, where his brother Jack once served and where his younger brother Ted now sits from Massachusetts.

Bobby probably will start out slowly, just as he did as a new attorney general, until he learns the ropes.

"He knows his role in the Senate," a friend said. "He will be neither a bull in a China shop nor a knight on a white horse.

"He will study hard and do his homework. He will work hard for schools in New York, on youth problems and he will maintain his interest in foreign affairs.

"But he knows he has to work with others to be effective."

private interests without thought to potential national use.

He said he knew from personal experience that some of the bases to be closed could be conserved as parks, seashores and wildlife sanctuaries.

McNamara has argued that the closing of the bases will benefit local communities by placing the land on local tax rolls, something that wouldn't happen if they were made part of the conservation program.

Besides his meeting with Freeman, Johnson's big announced-in-advance appointment today was with an Iowa-bred Yorkshire boar named Mr. High I.Q. This animal, a bacon-producer, was being sent to the ranch in response to an offhand Johnson comment, during a campaign visit to Des Moines, that one thing his ranch could use was a Yorkshire boar.

Out Of Jail, Then Back In

A 36-year-old San Francisco man completed a 30-day jail sentence in his home town yesterday on a charge of using a San Anselmo man's credit card at several department stores, but it didn't mean freedom for him.

San Anselmo police brought James Holland to Marin County Jail, where he was booked on a burglary charge.

Asst. Chief Sam Serio said Holland was charged with breaking into the home of Robert M. Brooks of 212 Spring Grove Avenue while Brooks was on vacation earlier this fall.

Police believe this was the only way Holland could have acquired Brooks' credit card, Serio explained.

ESCAPE

reasons not to discuss this phase of his imprisonment in any more detail."

The account of the escape continued:

"I became bound and determined," Klusmann said, "that they weren't going to hold me any more. Somehow I was either going to get out or I was going to die trying."

Around the first of August he was moved to a camp surrounded by a double barbed-wire enclosure. Some of the Laotian prisoners in the camp approached him with a plan to escape and, discarding his own plan to try it alone, he joined them.

"A Loatian whom I didn't know was going to accompany us reached down and pulled loose strands of wire that we had previously weakened. He went out and I was right behind him," he said.

Klusmann said he and his companion followed animal trails. "We began running into leeches in great quantities," he said. "They were not very big, anywhere from half an inch to three inches in length, but we had to stop every two or three hours to get them off. They bothered me mostly on my ankles."

Three days after the escape they sighted a fortified hill held by friendly forces. Word was sent out for an airplane.

"The plane had landed," Klusmann said, "and a fellow came running down the hill, an American, calling my name. It was about the greatest sound I've ever heard in my life."

Getaway Is Made On Bike

An Unidentified schoolboy made a fast gataway on his bicycle yesterday as a San Rafael police officer was about to arrest him on a charge of shoplifting a 15 cent cherry pie from a grocery store.

Police said they were called by Lloyd Mason, owner of the Tamalpais Market at Second and D streets, who said he had the boy in his custody.

Officer Phillip D. Green went to the market and tried to question the boy, who refused to tell his name or answer other questions. Green put the youngster in his patrol car, he said, and the boy asked if he could take his bike along. Green replied that he would have Mason keep an eye on it.

Green said he stepped inside the market to explain this to Mason. When he returned, the boy and bicycle were disappearing quickly down the street.

Driver Hurt As Car Hits Parked Truck

Robert E. Suttles, 18, of 228 Belle Avenue, San Rafael, was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for minor injuries after his car hit a parked truck in front of 1516 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, at 3:35 a.m. today.

San Rafael police said Suttles apparently dozed att he wheel. His car struck a new pickup truck owned by Denver A. Fox of 1516 Lincoln Avenue. The truck, in turn, was shoved forward into a parked station wagon, also owned by Fox.

PERILOUS PIGEON PROBLEM

St. Francis was patron of birds, but his namesake city of San Francisco has a pigeon problem of prolific proportions, as portrayed in this picture of a promenade through Union Square. Pedestrians have to duck to prevent collisions—or worse. City supervisors, however, have passed an anti-feeding ordinance — effective next July. Previous programs have been pigeon-holed because of bird lovers' protests. (AP Wirephoto)

New Dome-Shaped Buttons . . . Used Without Buttonholes

By EUNICE FARMER

I have seen so many of the very round or dome-shaped buttons on expensive suits in magazines. Is it possible to make buttonholes large enough for these buttons? — Mrs. W. H.

Dear Mrs. W. H.:

You don't know how excited I get when you readers become aware of the little details in garments that are constantly changing. The dome-shaped buttons are very new, some of them almost round. When they are very large, they are usually sewed on the front of your garment without buttonholes. This is also true of the larger braid and corded buttons. On the inside of facing, sew very large snaps as a means of closing the garment. Always cover the snaps with a matching crepe or silk for that "couture touch."

Mrs. N. A. says: After completing a knitted garment, it is always wise to thread a yarn needle with the same yarn, run it up loosely and hidden in the seams of the side and sleeves on the reverse side. This way, you will always have the same yarn to use for mending and it will be the shade you need.

I am having trouble with my skirts poking out at the lowest point of the zipper. In fact, the whole seam where the zipper is placed seems to stand away from my body. This is rather unsightly and I don't know just what I am doing wrong.—Mrs. M. S.

Dear Mrs. M. S.:

I strongly suspect that you are not fitting the skirt as I have suggested. Do not baste the side seams first. Pin side seams wrong sides together, with the seams extending out. Pins should be placed vertically on the seam line. This is an easy way to fit the skirt yourself. After fitting, separate the seams and rub chalk on the pins. The marks will now appear on the inside of the skirt.

When stitching the side seams of a skirt, always stitch from the hemline up to the waist. Your skirt will hang muchbetter because you are stitching with the grain.

AVOID BULK AT WAIST

When lining skirts of heavy fabrics and double knits, make the darts in each separately. However, instead of pressing both sets of darts towards the center front and center back, press the darts on the skirt lining toward the side seams. When you pin the two layers of skirt fabric together at the waistline, you will have lots less bulk at the waistline seam!

Mrs. Bob Christian, Fort Worth, Tex., wins this week's Tailor Trix pressing board for this fine suggestion.

The "fake furs" are so beautiful, but look like they would be so difficult to work with. Can you give us a few suggestions that might help? — Mrs. J. P.

Dear Mrs. J. P.:

Fake furs are very popular with the more "sportive look" of today. A hat, vest, jacket or coat (or even a coat or jacket lining) is the most. Fake fur isn't too difficult to work with if you use a little caution and follow these directions.

Don't choose a pattern with much ease, gathers or pleats because of the bulk. Sleeves should be cut with the body, in other words, raglan sleeves. Collars and cuffs and pocket flaps should be lined in a firm, matching colored fabric.

The nap of the fur cloth must be cut down. As you stroke down it must be smooth, like petting the back of an animal. All pieces of your garment must be cut in this direction.

If the fur cloth has a knit type backing, you must stretch the seam line slightly as you sew. Do not use a small machine stitch. After the seams have been stitched, pull any fur pile out of the seam with a needle or straight pin.

Press the fur fabric very little, mostly with a steam iron. Use a soft piece of wool or a towel under your fabric so you won't flatten the pile. Darts should be cut down the center and pressed open, catch-stitching the cut edges to the wrong side of fur fabric. Instead of buttonholes, close the jacket with frogs or braid loops.

Fur cloth makes a terrific lining for capes, jackets or coats. Also, consider making a reversible stole by lining it completely with the fur cloth.

There are some very simple, easily made items suggested in Eunice Farmer's "Christmas Quickie Gifts" booklet which you may obtain by sending 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal.

Lasting World Peace One Answer To Easing Taxes

"WE NEED ECONOMY in all levels of government. We need to have the government get out of costly activities it doesn't belong in anyhow. The greatest danger to our way of life is the growth in the burden of taxation which threatens to crush us—and our way of life."

If you have never heard that kind of talk, it can only be because you didn't listen. It is what Senator Goldwater's backers counted upon to carry the day (Nov. 3, that is) for their man.

While there is some validity in such a point of view, it doesn't represent the whole truth of the matter.

By far the largest and heaviest burden of federal government costs are those related to war preparedness and the prices of past wars still being paid.

All the economy and frugality in the world, applied to the federal government, would not cut costs the way guaranteed and lasting world peace could.

WORLD PEACE IS worth working for economically as well as for humanitarian reasons (not to mention self-preservation).

How can world peace be ultimately achieved? Not by endlessly expanding our defenses. A world order of some kind must be the ultimate solution. At the moment, the United Nations offer the best great hope in this direction.

If the U.N. fails, as did the League of Nations in an earlier generation, World War III cannot be far ahead.

Right-wingers who condemn the United Nations and what it stands for do a disservice to their country.

Until they come up with a better, constructive idea for promoting lasting world-wide peace, they ought to shut up.

So if you want to reduce the burden of oppressive federal taxation, concern yourself with the problems of securing enduring peace.

LOCAL TAXES ARE no longer a minor item anymore, either.

Take the tax bill on your home or business property in Marin. Nearly 60 cents of every dollar goes toward schools. If you pay, say, a $600 tax bill on your home, approximately $350 will go toward schools.

Special districts—lighting, mosquito abatement, fire protection, community services, etc.—frequently get blamed for driving county tax bills higher. But they are actually more of a scapegoat.

If your property tax bill is $600, you actually are paying less than $50 for special districts.

City taxes? The city council gets blamed for a lot of things, including higher taxes. But the fact is that on an average in Marin, the fellow who pays $600 property tax on his home is paying just under $50 of it toward city taxes.

County government will cost him about three times more, about $150.

If your bill is about $600, then, it breaks down about like this:

Schools	$350
Special Districts	50
City Government	50
County Government	150
Total	$600

A LITTLE MORE THAN 40 per cent of the cost of county government comes under the head of "public assistance," otherwise known as "welfare." This would amount to more than $60 of the $150 shown above for county government cost.

So county welfare costs in Marin are greater than city government and greater than special districts. County welfare accounts for 10 per cent or more of our total local property tax bill. (And it keeps going up.)

Who gets the benefit of these welfare expenditures?

Between $40 and $50 of the aforementioned $60, goes to providing various kinds of assistance for the aged, those over 65. Of course, that is oversimplifying it. Actually, "administration" of the assistance takes a big bite out of what actually goes to help those in need.

SCHOOL AND WELFARE costs suffer from the same condition. They have largely passed from local control. They are dictated from Sacramento.

We need to provide for good education and we need to provide for the care of the needy. But we could probably do it more efficiently and more economically and perhaps more effectively with more local autonomy and less state dictation.

PROPOSITION 15 to outlaw Pay-TV in California was approved by voters by a substantial margin.

But Proposition 15 didn't outlaw Pay-TV; at least, not the bad kind of Pay-TV. Just before the postponement of the Clay-Liston heavyweight championship fight, did you notice the advertisements for the pay-televising? You could, if the fight had gone on as scheduled, paid up to $5 for a seat near the Pay-TV screen in a Richmond theater. In San Francisco, you could pay up to $7.50 per seat, in a theater.

Had Proposition 15 NOT passed, you might be seeing pay-TV shows in the comfort of your own home for only $1.50. And the whole family plus friends and neighbors could all come in and watch without paying one cent more.

Could it be that the theaters which fought so hard for Proposition 15 intended to create for themselves a tight monopoly?

How long will it be before the World Series leaves home TV screens and moves to theater TV screens, at $7.50 per seat?

How long will it take California voters to find out how they were misled on Proposition 15?

SILENT THIEF ESCAPES NOTICE

A thief did his burglarizing so silently that he looted a home in Greenwich, Conn., without being noticed by any of the 5 people or 3 dogs on the premises.

It wasn't until long after the robber's getaway that the home owner discovered the disappearance of a portable television set and $122 in cash.

Such an instance is highly unusual. Nevertheless, it is a reminder of how alert each of us should be to protect ourselves against mischief-makers, especially those who silently and surreptitiously undermine the home, community, nation and world.

Do more than be on the lookout for thieves and assorted evil-doers. Show daring and resourcefulness in promoting a respect for law, loyalty and decency.

The Lord expects you to become actively involved in bringing about the peaceful, orderly world that He wishes all men to enjoy. To be merely a passive spectator sitting on the sidelines is to play into the hands of those who are the enemies of both God and man.

"He who is not with Me is against Me, and he who does not gather with Me scatters." (Matthew 12:30)

Grant me the wisdom and courage, O Holy Spirit, to uphold justice and truth fearlessly.

Federal Aid Urged To Save Redwoods

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The Independent-Journal deserves the plaudits of all its readers for "seeing all sides" of the Redwoods National Park issue in its editorials of last week.

It is certainly correct that the Counties of Del Norte and Humboldt should not be called upon to bear the whole cost of preserving a great national resource, any more than the Marin school districts of Dixie and San Jose should pay the entire added cost of educating dependents of men stationed at the nearby national defense center, Hamilton Air Force Base.

In the latter case, the Federal Government recognizes, through its Aid to Impacted Areas Program, that all the people of the United States should share in the cost of defending the United States. So in the former case, the whole nation should share in the investment in a great national asset. "In lieu" payments, such as the Government makes in areas where its defense installations and contractors simultaneously remove property from the tax rolls and increase the cost of government, should be extended to this sort of conservation project as well.

With such an extension, the country will save the last of its oldest living things, and yet our Northern Counties will remain solvent and prosperous.

San Anselmo Plan Should Be Followed

Editor, Independent-Journal:

San Anselmo's landscaped parking area can be a first step in reviving our dumpy little business district if the design, approved by our City Council last Tuesday, is built promptly and as planned.

The thinking which urges a combination of beauty and business was ably stated in the written report which landscape architect William Kapranos presented. . . .

"It is indisputable that a great part of San Anselmo's charm is due to the natural tree-lined creek. . . . It is also indisputable that San Anselmo's business district must remain not only a functioning entity, but should also be an asset to the City. . . . These two factors of essential business and charming creek are inextricably entwined. . . .

"We strongly recommend that the City and adjacent commercial property owners pursue the possibility of creek frontage store use in the form of secondary entrances, mall-like seating areas and maximum pedestrian circulation . . . in a unique creek front esplanade, so appealing as to constitute a real attraction not only for the people of San Anselmo, but also for 'outside' shoppers."

Mr. Kapranos' comments are epitomized in the maxim that good aesthetics are good economics. . . .

Assassination Reaction Queried

Editor, Independent-Journal:

A year ago a communist, a murderer, destroyed a young life, the life of the President of the United States. When the shocking news was announced, I expected a big roar of indignation against all communists in this nation and of course a terribly strong protest from all high officials in the administration, the administration they inherited from President Kennedy.

To my amazement not one word against communism was uttered from anyone, not Lyndon Johnson, not Dean Rusk, not Robert McNamara, nor even Robert Kennedy. On the contrary the commies were highly rewarded by giving them millions of wheat on credit.

If the same case had been reversed and a Russian friendly to America had murdered Khrushchev, the whole Kremlin would have arrested every American living or visiting Russia, the protests against us would never had ended, the whole world would have been aroused against us. But here all the administration did was to put the investigation in the hands of Earl Warren. Reversing things, can you picture the Kremlin putting their investigation in the hands of a highly respected church man? Of course not, they don't believe in God, but we still do in spite of Warren.

GOP Might Join Whigs

Editor, Independent-Journal:

With charming feminine illogic, a Mrs. Weymouth of Kentfield maintains that a political candidate should develop a thick skin to shed criticism, then becomes distraught when I pointed out that her hero has led the Republican Party into catastrophe. However, she does not have to take my word for it, if the present group retains leadership through 1968 and 1972, the Republican Party will most certainly join the Whigs and Federalists in the mausoleum of American politics.

She also finds the word "kook" distressing, as applied to the right wing of American politics. In that case, I withdraw it, instead she can choose from "nut," "wierdo," or "loony." If she prefers more scholarly language, then "psychotic" or "paranoid." . . . This is only a literal description of a factual situation.

Program To Carry LBJ Brand; Who Will Be New Senate Whip?

By HARRY KELLY
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson is preparing to send his own legislative program along the old, storm-swept congressional trail.

This time it will carry his brand alone rather than the joint JFK-LBJ sign of the previous Congress. The Texas rancher is sure to watch over it as if it were a prize newborn calf.

THE CONGRESSIONAL signs bode well for the president's program. Johnson's Democrats will have their biggest majority in the House since the New Deal days and have increased their top-heavy edge in the Senate.

But big majorities don't dazzle Johnson. The man who made his reputation generaling Democratic forces in the Senate believes that leadership is the key to success.

So he is faced with a problem: filling Vice President-elect Hubert Humphrey's shoes as the party's assistant leader—or more descriptively, the whip—in the Senate.

IT'S A BIG job and big shoes.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the majority leader, is of a scholarly nature, free of pugnacity. Thus much of the heavy legislative line plunging was left to the staccato-talking man in motion: Humphrey.

Johnson approved of the way he did it, so much so that he picked him as his running mate, gaining a vice president but losing a Senate whip.

Who will replace Humphrey? A number of senators want to try.

RUSSELL B. LONG of Louisiana, Mike Monroney of Oklahoma and John O. Pastore of Rhode Island all have announced they would like the job and circulated letters to their colleagues seeking support.

Other names have been mentioned, including Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan.

Technically the president has no hand in making the selection. The decision will be made by the 68 Democrats voting in caucus before Congress opens.

BUT REALIZING what a quietly spread word from the president can mean, Long and Monroney have sought Johnson's ear. Later Monroney told newsmen Johnson had informed him he wasn't taking a hand in it. Long reported that he thought the caucus would pick him "providing President Johnson does not enter the situation."

It is the "bantam rooster of the Senate," Pastore, whom Long regards as his toughest opponent.

Well he might. Of all the possibilities the senator from Rhode Island appears to be the closest match to the Humphrey pattern.

A LIBERAL, he is intense, combative, quick to debate, respected for his knowledge of legislation and a hard-driving supporter of Johnson's legislation.

Also he was the man Johnson personally picked to make the keynote address at the party's Atlantic City convention.

So the word is being whispered around that Pastore is the best bet to end up Senate wrangler for the LBJ program in the new Congress.

Hong Kong Target For Love Missive

YES, IT'S TRUE, Hong Kong, I love you. I've tried to forget you, but you are like a fever on the brain. Despite your faults—your aching, appalling poverty, your sometimes callous rich, your mercenary traits, your sexual depravity, I love you.

Time passes by and men and cities change, but, my love, we were made for each other. It is November again; your days are warm and sunny and your nights cool and comfortable. The fall monsoon should be stealing gently and dryly from the Mainland. I remember two other Novembers and you beckon me.

You are truly beautiful, my love. Your diamond-studded Peak seen from the Star Ferry on a black velvet night—magnificent! Your jungle-clad hills with their tropical flowers, wild caladiums and barking deer. The morning sun on the raw, red soil of your Nine Dragon Hills. The splendor of the nights on your teeming streets with their vivid neon Chinese characters. Your tiny lanes, like Cat's Alley, where one might buy something precious for a song or be stuck with an overpriced bauble. Your fabled Harbor where the world's commercial ships and the U.S. Seventh Fleet rub elbows with local fishing junks. And your delicate, lovely, almond-eyed women and the unrivaled shapeliness of the female Cantonese leg as revealed by their cheong-sams.

You are my favorite cook, Hong Kong, my dear. From your fiery Szechuan and Shanghai to your more subtle Cantonese, the cookery of all China is brought to perfection in your many fine restaurants. Malayan, French, English, Russian, Buddhist vegetarian, you've got them all and more. Are your chestnut vendors hawking their piping hot delicacy from their charcoal braziers in Causeway Bay yet? What a treat they were on a chilly day! The joys of your native spirits, ng-ka-pai, mao-tai and shum ching, are well remembered, though no longer for me.

BUT WHAT of the people of the Colony—your soul, so to speak? Yes, I love the Cantonese people for their courage and toughness, their ability to endure the unendurable and still make jokes about it. Gossiping, grasping, noisy, uninhibited, the Cantonese lives from day to day as though he knew the secret of happiness in adversity. Perhaps he does.

I admire the tradition of genuine culture among your educated class, and the neat way in which some of them have combined the best of both East and West. They are the true multi-lingual cosmopolites of this world.

YOU ARE FAR from perfect—the most ruthlessly mercenary city I know. Money is almost God to some of your people. But you are honest about it. You know your own weakness, which is somewhat redeeming.

Who could ever forget you after spending two Chinese New Year's with you? The unbelievable din of avalanches of fireworks and the indescribable beauty of the flowers and blossoming trees of the New Year's Fair.

I MISS YOUR crowded, noisy, hustling, bustling, busy city. I hope to see you soon. If not this year, then next. Take good care of yourself.

That Day In Dallas A Shining Light Was Extinguished

Political Writer Recalls Day Kennedy Assassinated

(EDITOR'S NOTE—On that fateful day in Dallas, Jack Bell was riding in the presidential motorcade—four cars behind President John F. Kennedy's limousine. Bell, veteran political writer and chief of the AP's Senate Staff, recalls the tragedy of last Nov. 22.)

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — It still is a bad dream that couldn't happen in real life. But it did on that day of Nov. 22, 1963, when a vibrant young president was murdered.

It had rained in Fort Worth, Tex., that morning. When I peered out of the window of my hotel room I saw that despite the drizzle, a crowd already had gathered in a parking lot across the street where President John F. Kennedy was scheduled for a brief appearance.

By the time the smiling president stepped out of an elevator in the crowded lobby two hours later, the sun had broken through. Flanked by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Gov. John B. Connally of Texas, the president walked across the street, spoke briefly.

In a high good humor he explained to the friendly crowd that Mrs. Kennedy wasn't with him because she still was making preparations for a breakfast appearance scheduled for them in the hotel.

"It takes a little longer, but she looks so much better than we do," he said with a grin.

After the breakfast meeting, at which Kennedy praised the controversial TFX warplane to be built in Fort Worth, the president and his wife made their way through the applauding crowds to the White House limousine from which the bubble top had been removed.

The presidential motorcade wound through streets banked with citizens who cheered and clapped as the handsome young president and his beautiful wife rode by. The story was the same as it had been the day before in San Antonio and Houston. Texans liked the Kennedys and were showing it.

When Air Force 1 landed at Dallas' Love Field a few minutes later, Mrs. Kennedy, wearing a fuchsia-colored suit, was presented with a bouquet of red roses. She joined the president in a handshaking walk along a fence which held back an enthusiastic crowd.

Then the motorcade was off, heading for downtown Dallas. There the crowds filled the streets, pressing in so closely motorcycle police had difficulty clearing a lane for the open car from which the president and his wife were smiling and waving.

Dallas had shown with its warm welcome on that sunny midday that it admired the man who had been elected by a whisker and who had tried to "get the country moving" in his first 1,000 days.

As the motorcade made a right turn off the packed street, suddenly the tumult died and there were only a few waving spectators. Ahead, we rode toward a left turn into a street which led to an underpass. Nearby was a building with a sign which read: "Texas School Book Depository."

The president's auto, four cars ahead, already had made the turn toward the underpass and we had just completed it when there was a loud report. My first though was: Those Texans, now they're shooting off giant firecrackers.

Then came two more reports paced possibly five seconds apart. They had the ominous sound of rifle crack. The president's car had stopped. We reporters riding "pool" scrambled to get out to run ahead.

But at almost that instant, a Secret Service man, riding in the front seat of the presidential limousine stood up, phone in hand and waved the preceding police cruiser on.

In that numbed moment we all sensed that something horrible might have happened. But we had no way of knowing exactly what as we thundered along a freeway at top speed in pursuit of the presidential car.

Everybody in the president's car seemed to be down, but that would be prescribed procedure in escaping any danger zone.

We careened around a turn and roared into the driveway of Parkland Hospital. When we screeched to a stop I saw, as I scrambled out of the "pool" car, Mrs. Kennedy weeping, trying to hold her husband's head up.

Mrs. Connally was supporting the governor who sat slumped in a jump seat, his head rolled back, his suit and shirt front covered with blood. By the time I had sprinted up to the presidential limousine, Secret Service men were helping Mrs. Kennedy away. Hospital attendants were slipping Connally onto a stretcher.

When I reached the car, there was the president sprawled on his face in the rear seat. There was a pool of blood on the floor. Three twisted and torn red roses lay in it.

"Is he dead?" I asked a Secret Service man who stood guard.

"I don't know but I don't think so," he replied.

As I rushed for a telephone, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was being escorted up a corridor to a cubicle near the receiving desk.

At the desk I found a phone, got the AP bureau on the line and shouted: "The president's been shot." A photographer on the scene of the assassination already had phoned an eyewitness account but I poured out all of the information I had collected.

Then began the agonizing wait for some official word on the president's condition. Some Congress members, White House staffers and even the priest who had been in the emergency room with him were not sure.

There was a report Johnson had been shot and one that he had a heart attack. When Mrs. Johnson came out of the emergency room, accompanied by Secret Service men, I jumped in front of them and asked, "Is Lyndon all right?"

"Yes," she replied. Her eyes were wet with tears.

"Is the president dead?"

One of the Secret Service men spun me backward as she went on without answering.

A few minutes later Malcolm Kilruff, acting press secretary, rushed out yelling, "Follow me, I've got an announcement!"

As we raced after him, we knew the president must be dead but still clung to hope. It died with the finality of the announcement.

A shining light had gone out.

CITY AWAY FROM DEATH—This is how the late President John F. Kennedy appeared last Nov. 22 as he spoke in Fort Worth, Tex., prior to a breakfast conference. With him (left to right) are Sen. Ralph Yarborough, Gov. John Connally and then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson. A few hours later and one city away, at Dallas, the president was dead and Connally was critically wounded. A-Powered Rockets May Conquer Space

By WILLIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Managers of the nation's costly nuclear rocket program are convinced—on the basis of four recent "hot" runs—that they have achieved a new form of space propulsion.

However, before the atom can actually propel a spacecraft, they say they need another 10 years of work and another 1 billion dollars. The program, known as Project Rover, has so far cost 732 million dollars since its inception in 1955.

Harold B. Finger, program manager, said the successful firings of rocket reactors in August, September and October "constitute the largest single advance in rocketry" since the late Robert H. Goddard flew a gasoline and liquid oxygen fueled engine on March 6, 1926.

Goddard's machine was the forerunner of today's large chemically propelled missiles and space boosters.

Films of the reactor tests conducted at Jackass Flats, Nev., were shown at a press briefing here. Two reactors, one in the Kiwi series and the other a more advanced Nerva, were each fired twice.

In all the firings, including one lasting eight minutes, the reactors developed thrust exceeding 50,000 pounds — about one-seventh the power of an Atlas rocket. The films showed vibration problems which had shaken apart earlier models apparently have been solved.

What sets a nuclear reactor apart is that it needs only one propellent — hydrogen. Heat exceeding 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit is generated by fissioning atoms in uranium-impregnated graphite rods in the reactor's core. The hydrogen, which is stored in liquid form, is then pumped through the core. It quickly turns to gas, expands, and accelerates out a nozzle to produce thrust.

Theoretically, the duration of a nuclear rocket firing is limited only by the supply of hydrogen. Its attraction as an upper stage for space travel rests on the fact that performance is almost twice as efficient as with the best chemical combustion rockets. This means the nuclear rocket could propel double the payload to Mars, for example.

The present program encompasses only the ground development of the reactor.

State To Sell Thousands Of Acres Of 'School Lands'

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Between 100,000 and 300,000 acres of state land, scattered around the state in 35 counties, will become available for public sale on Dec. 29, the State Division of Lands announced.

No state land has been sold or exchanged since the state lands commission adopted a moratorium in 1960.

The land is so-called school land. When California became a state, the 16th and 36th section in each township was deeded to the state for school purposes.

The land for sale will be in parcels from 40 acres to 640 acres. Cities, counties, school districts and state agencies will have priority rights on the state land.

However, if they do not move to withdraw the lands within two years, they will be available for sale.

Applications for purchase of the land will be acceptable on and after Dec. 29. When an application is filed on a piece of property, it then will be appraised.

Following appraisal, sealed bids may be submitted, with the appraised value the minimum bid. Because of a limited staff in the division of lands, some appraisals may take as long as six months.

Sealed bids must include the total of the appraised price if this is under $500.

Further information is available at the State Division of Lands, 1320 K Street, Sacramento.

Marco Polo Would Like Asia Highway Because It's Faster Commercial Route

By KARSTEN PRAGER
Associated Press Writer

BANKGKOK—There can't be much doubt about how Marco Polo would have traveled to fabled Cathay back in 1271 had he had a road and a jeep.

He would have taken to the "Asian Highway" and in the process chopped his travel time from the Middle East to China from three and one-half years to a matter of days.

As it was, no such road existed. Nor were there jeeps. The famed Venetian adventurer, first traveler to blaze a trail across the vast Asian continent, followed ancient caravan routes, some dating back to King Solomon's days, to reach the court of the great Kublai Khan.

It's easier today.

There is such a thing as an Asian Highway — a 6,500-mile route from the barren Turkish-Iranian border, across deserts and some of the world's most forbidding mountains, to the lush rice fields and jungles of Southeast Asia.

Part of the way it follows Marco Polo's approximate route. He, too, ventured through the desert, cut north into Afghanistan's Pamir plateau, the roof of the world, before heading for China.

Traveling along this highway may soon be the thing to do for jaded globetrotters bored with big game hunting in Kenya or skindiving in the Bahamas. There's no lack of adventure, and with the historic Khyber Pass or the Taj Mahal luring by the wayside, it's as good a tourist bargain as any. Besides, it's something few have done.

Right now, a jeep or Land Rover and a tough constitution are essential for the journey. Rugged surfaces are still the rule rather than the exception of the highway.

But United Nations officials, who dreamed up the project, already envisage blue and white markers—the U. N. colors—along the route. They will bear the inscription "A-1 (Asia-1)", Asia's first international motor route, a road almost on the scale of the 18,000 - mile Pan American Highway.

In another two years, officials hope, remaining badly surfaced stretches will be improved and gaps in the road will be closed. The ambitious tourist will then be able to load up the family in Copenhagen or Munich and head east almost as far as Mandaly, in Burma.

"If you want to see the real Asia, there's nothing like it," says a man who has made the trip. He is William Tanzer, information chief of the U. N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East headquarters here, where plans for the highway were shaped in 1958.

Tanzer and a group of Australian and Japanese television newsmen set out from Turkey earlier this year in two brand new Volkswagen buses and ended their journey 66 days later at the Indo-Burmese border, almost 6,000 miles to the east.

Actual traveling time came to 30 days, highlighted, among other things, by four flats, a broken windshield wiper and two broken bottles of ketchup.

"I would recommend the trip to anyone without hesitation," says Tanzer. "Provided, of course, you're ready to put up with a bit of hardship." He estimated that with plenty of sightseeing to slow it down, the journey can be made in a leisurely six weeks.

The basic idea was to discover a cheap land route that would help the economies of Asian nations, encouraging trade and road construction and serving the 600 million people—one-fifth of the world's population—who live on the southern fringe of the continent.

With Asian resources sharply limited there was no thought of a superhighway on which frolicky tourists could zip from the east to the west or vice versa. It was left to each nation to develop existing roads and upgrade them as funds allowed.

Now, six years later, ECAFE says 96 per cent of the highway is all-weather. That means a through-route exists between Bazargan, on the Turkish-Iranian border, and Saigon, South Vietnam, linking Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

In West Pakistan and India, more than 1,500 miles of the Asian Highway still are dirt or laterite (crushed soft rock).

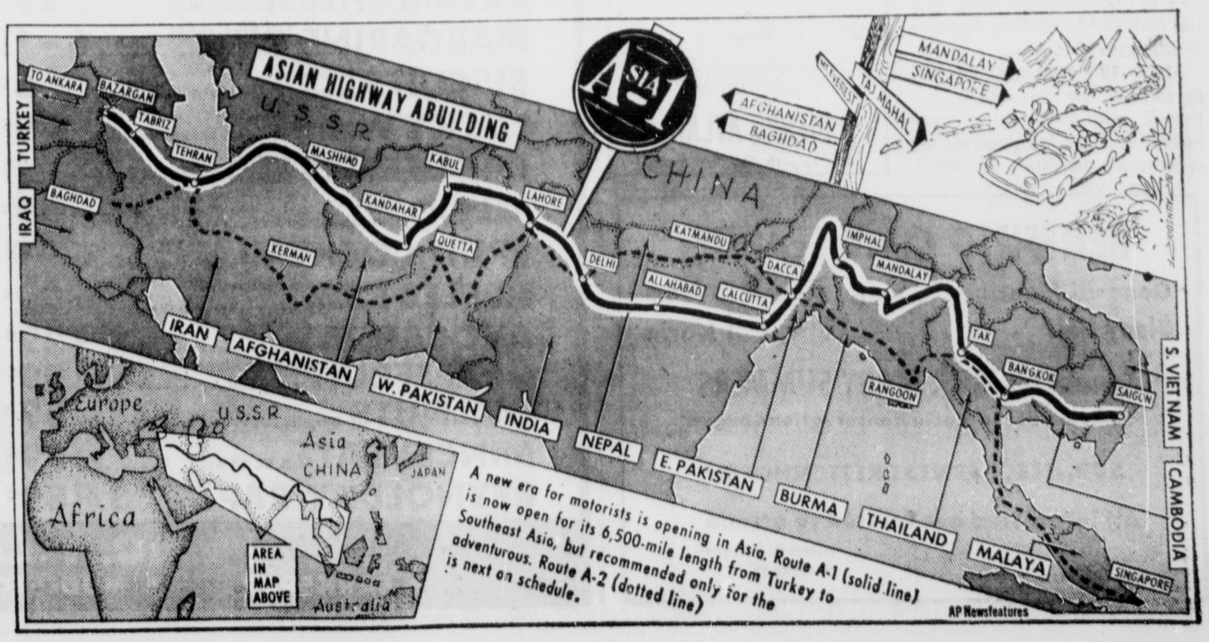
In Iran and Afghanistan, where natural obstacles are formidable, large sections of unmetaled road remain. In East Pakistan, in the Ganges River delta, 10 bridges need to be built to replace ferries. Burma remains closed to international traffic and some 200 miles of road remain to be built in that country.

Thailand, Cambodia and South Vietnam are passable enough with due respect to the Communist Viet Cong who control much of the road.

A-1, as laid out today, is only one of the major routes under consideration as part of an international Asian highway system. A-2, also given top priority, will be more than 7,000 miles long; paralleling and partially overlapping A-1, it will connect Iraq with Singapore and, possibly, via a ferry connection, all the way through to Indonesia's fabled Bali island.

The eventual aim, far in the future, is to link A-2 with a Pan African highway. The system would then tie together three continents and at the same time give road-poor Asia a network of some 35,000 miles of priority highways.

When will the system be completed? Officials have no target date. But they feel a growing auto population in Asia will exert pressure on highway construction and large stretches of the network may be in common use in another two years.



This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Here are the highlights of the week's news:

Rome — The Vatican Ecumenical Council closed its lengthy third session by approving a historical document absolving the Jews from any special blame in the crucifixion of Christ. The session failed to act, however, on a controversial declaration of religious liberty strongly supported by American prelates.

Congo — Eight-hundred Belgian paratroopers were flown by the U.S. Air Force to Ascension Island for possible emergency action to rescue 1,000 whites held by Communist-led rebels in Stanleyville, the Congo. At least 60 Americans are held by the rebels and one of them, missionary Doctor Paul Carlson, has been sentenced to die as a spy. His execution has been postponed until Monday.

Washington — Defense Secretary Robert McNamara announced plans to close down 95 military installations here and abroad in an economy measure. Some 63,000 civilian and military jobs were at stake and cries of protest from those affected and their elected representatives assailed McNamara even before the announcement was made official.

Washington—J. Edgar Hoover, in an unprecedented interview spoke out against the Warren Commission report on President John F. Kennedy's assassination for its criticism of the FBI. He also lashed out at the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., whom he called "the most notorious liar in the country" for saying that FBI agents in Albany, Ga., failed to take action in civil rights cases. His charge drew angry replies from King, other Negro leaders and several newspapers.

New York — Roy W. Howard, chairman of the executive committee of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, died yesterday at the age of 81. Howard, who started his newspaper career as an $8 a week reporter actively headed the group of 17 newspapers at the time of his death. He was an organizer and a prime architect of the United Press, later to become the United Press International.

Detroit — After 129 days, settlement was reached in the strike that had stopped publication of both the Detroit News and Free Press. The walkout began July 13 when pressmen and paperhandlers balked at new contract terms.

Student Writes Of JFK Tragedy

"The world came to look dark . . . the students walked slowly home . . . The flag in front of the school gave mute testimony to the tragedy . . ." writes David Einstein in an editorial which appeared yesterday in Tamalpais High School's student newspaper, Tamalpais News.

Hhere are some excerpts from the editorial, titled, November 22, 1963:

"The ordinary was commonplace, and things were all right in general. An average number of students were roaming the halls, legally or otherwise, and outside the school the world had never been better.

"It was third period. Brunch had consisted mainly of talk of the places kids would go that night and the things they would do. There was a dance in Sausalito, and a good picture at the theater.

"Now third period was 10 minutes gone . . . In the office the routine of the day had fallen into place . . .

"A radio in the corner of the office twined a melody through the conversation. Nobody listened, but everyone knew it was there.

"Then the melody stopped, and the radio blurted forth the first incoherent phrases. A shock wave which changed the faces of everyone swept through the office. Then the shock spread through the school . . .

"Fourth period came quickly, and with it came an indescribable quietness that covered the school like a giant net.

"No one talked, and undeserved shame invaded our consciences, and we could not look at each other's eyes.

"No one talked.

"Some, mostly female students, wept openly. The teachers tried to restrain their tears, and the male students followed their example. Pride had interfered where it was not welcome. We all wanted to cry . . .

"By the time the last bell had rung, sadness had begun to replace shock. The world came to look dark, and reality suddenly made the world an undesirable place.

"The students walked slowly home, and the flag in front of the school gave mute testimony to the tragedy as it hung limply at half mast."

Residents Ired By TV Static

Residents of the 100 block of Oak Knoll Avenue in San Anselmo are having trouble with static interference on television frequencies.

"Its so bad we just can't watch television at night," said Mrs. K. S. Cooke of 100 Oak Knoll Avenue. She said a neighbor across the street has the same difficulty.

The static starts at 9 p.m. and runs to midnight. Consulting television repairmen has done no good, Mrs. Cooke said.

She and her neighbors are anxious for any information that might at least explain the problem.

Americans Grow Taller, Heftier

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A sizable part of the human race seems to be growing taller and broader. The growth has been most striking in the United States, pushing Americans up among the biggest people in the world.

American men now average 5 feet, 10 inches—2 inches more than in 1900. Women are taller, too, averaging 5 feet, 5 inches. Weights also have gone up, to an average of 165 pounds for men, 127 pounds for women.

Homes Found For Mexican Visitors

"Finding hosts for 12 Mexican students visiting Marin County next month looked like an insurmountable task Thursday but today, with the help of the I-J, we have found temporary homes for nine of the visitors."

So said Mrs. Donald J. O'Leary of 6 St. Bernard Lane, Tiburon, who reported 16 Marin County residents volunteered to host Experiment in International Living visitors within two hours after she received her Independent-Journal with a story about the guest on Thursday.

"We got calls from families in Tiburon, Belvedere, Mill Valley, San Rafael, Greenbrae, San Anselmo, Corte Madera, Kentfield and one from Novato," Mrs. O'Leary said.

"We were thrilled that so many people wanted to open their homes to the visitors."

Four or five more host-families are needed, three for the Mexican youths and a couple extra in case a family is unable to have the guest at the last minute, Mrs. O'Leary said.

Taxi Driver Slain, Robbed

MODESTO (AP) — The owner of the local Yellow Cab franchise was slain and robbed yesterday on a country road four miles west of Modesto.

Sam Secreto, 61, was found on a dirt road with his throat slashed and stab wounds in the abdomen. His left hand was slashed and the interior of his cab, found abandoned two miles away, was spattered with blood.

Officers thought the blood indicated Secreto tried to fight his assailant. They surmised that Secreto, who drove a cab, picked up a fare and was attacked from the rear seat.

General Defends Viet Helicopters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of Army aviation, Brig. Gen. John J. Tolson, says that helicopters used in South Vietnam are far less vulnerable and much more rugged than most people realize.

General Tolson said yesterday that more than one million individual missions have been flown by Army small planes and helicopters in South Vietnam and that of those hit, only two per cent have been lost.

Killer Given Five To Life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A German-born graduate student at the University of California in Berkeley was sentenced yesterday to five years to life in prison for killing his sweetheart.

San Francisco Superior Court Judge Francis McCarthy disregarded a state psychiatric recommendation of probation for Guenther Hans Schoeller, 25.

Schoeller killed Hannelore Hausmann, his 23-year-old sweetheart whom he had brought with him from Germany. He testified she had laughed at him when he suggested they marry. The killing occurred April 24.

Senator Smith Hits McNamara's Timing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine) said yesterday "the timing" by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara of his announcement that 95 military bases would be closed "is highly suspect" because it comes just two weeks after the election.

"Why was this withheld from the people," Mrs. Smith asked in a statement issued after the defense secretary listed bases to be closed for economy reasons.

Catholic High Junior Girl Places In Speech Contest

Claire Broome, a junior at Marin Catholic High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Broome of Terra Linda, won sixth place among 70 finalists in the Golden Gate Speech Assn.'s impromptu speaking tournament in Richmond.

She won one first place and two second places in individual rounds of the tournament in which 850 students from 30 Bay Area public and private schools participated.

Other Marin Catholic High School students who participated in individual rounds were Mike Conroy, of Greenbrae, who won two first places; Marilyn Cassou of Greenbrae and Rosemary Penhallow of San Anselmo who won one first and one second place each; Sue Egisti of San Anselmo who won second place in two rounds, and Linda Swinn and Linda Fitharris of San Rafael, Peggy O'Mara of Hamilton Air Force Base and Mary Hearn of Novato who won one first place each.

Only Parking Lot Is Closed

Only the parking lot at Sir Francis Drake High School has been closed to student access, not the entire campus, Principal Harold Allison said today.

The Independent-Journal reported yesterday that the Drake campus had been closed because of student infractions.

The parking lot has been closed during school hours. Students may park their cars there but may not go there to eat lunch or for any other purpose during the school day, the principal said. There has been too much littering of the parking lot and too much smoking in parked autos.

Students are still allowed to leave the campus during lunchtime, which is prohibited under closed campus regulations.

Chief Appraiser Chambers Honored

John H. Chambers, chief appraiser in the county assessor's office, has been named to the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Assessor Bert W. Broemmel announced today.

"I'm very happy to see Mr. Chambers, who has been a dedicated appraiser and public servant, recognized by his peers in the appraisal field," said Broemmel.

Members of the faculty performing will be Byron Jones, baritone; Jean Stevens, English horn and oboe; Esther Furnas, viola; Jane Pokorny, Robert Jacobson and Hugo Rinaldi, violins, and Lewis Jones, piano.

Couple To Mark 50 Years Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Gscheidle of 165 Humboldt Street, San Rafael, celebrated their golden wedding today with a gathering of their family from all over California.

The Gscheidles were married in San Francisco, where Gscheidle worked on the cable cars. He later bought a grocery store which the couple operated for about 30 years at 99 Maple Street, San Francisco.

After retiring, the Gscheidles moved to Redwood City for a few years and then to San Rafael 12 years ago. Fred is 86, but his wife keeps her exact age a secret.

The gathering will be held at the San Francisco home of one of the couple's three daughters, Mrs. Walter Muegge, 1691 27th Avenue. Expecting to be there are their two other daughters, Mrs. Patricia Garms of San Rafael and Mrs. B. W. McBride of Belmont, and their families, and the couple's son Fred of San Diego and his family.

The Gscheidles have four grandchildren, six great grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. The presence of the whole clan at the anniversary was being kept a secret from the couple.

Robbery Charges Against Fairfax Youths Dismissed

Robbery charges against William Carter Danis, and James Francis Schmidt, of Fairfax were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court when the district attorney's office was not ready for preliminary hearing.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua Thomas said new identical charges will likely be filed. He said confusion on date of the hearing caught his office unprepared. The complaint was dismissed by Judge Leonard A. Thomas.

Danis, 18, and Schmidt, 19, were arrested by San Anselmo police last Sunday after Mrs. Audrey P. March, 35, of 182 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, reported they grabbed her purse near the Country Club Bowl at 88 Vivian Way, San Rafael.

The purse, minus $12 in cash, was later found by San Rafael police.

Airline Workers Out On Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Members of the International Machinists Union walked off their jobs at the San Francisco and Honolulu offices of Quantas Airlines yesterday, a company spokesman said.

Norman Powell, manager in North America for the Australian airline, said, "operations will continue as normal." He said he expected the company and the union would meet with the National Mediation Board in Washington Monday.

About 60 members left jobs in each of the two offices, but Powell said their duties were being handle by engineering supervisors and staff members.

Ecumenical Council Ends Its Session With Three Decrees

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI and the Vatican Ecumenical Council today proclaimed three historic decrees defining shared leadership at the summit of their church and new approaches to Christian unity.

At former public ceremonies closing the 1964 session of the council, the assembled Roman Catholic prelates issued these decrees:

1. "De Ecclesia" (on the Nature of the Church), defining the concept of collegiality that the bishops collectively share power with the Pope over the Church.

2. "De Oecumenismo" (on Unity), outlining ways Roman Catholics might join other Christians on the path to Christian unity through common prayer and ways.

3. "De Ecclesiis Orientalibus Cathllicis" (on the Catholic Oriental Churches), dealing with Eastern Rite Catholics and their relations with their non-Catholic Orthodox Christian neighbors.

The lavish ritual inside St. Peter's Basilica opened when Pope Paul was carried in on his portable throne at the end of a colorful procession of the 2,000 cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops. Voices of the Sistine Choir flowed through the church.

Pope Paul and 24 other prelates then celebrated a Mass just as was done on Sept. 14 for the opening of this Council session.

But the documents on religious liberty, the Church in the modern world, pastoral duties of bishops and other topics are still to be completed.

Conservatives who opposed the declaration on religious liberty succeeded in preventing a final vote on it in this session. An American-instigated petition by 1,400 bishops for a vote during this session was turned down Friday by the Pope.

The declaration upholds individual freedom to follow one's own religion and defends all religions from interference by the state.

The controversial declaration condemning anti-Semitism and proclaiming the Jews blameless in the Crucifixion of Christ won overwhelming approval yesterday. It must undergo minor revisions in the months ahead.

According to an official summary, the historic declaration says the Roman Catholic Church "held and holds that Christ underwent his passion and death freely, because of the sins of all men and out of infinite love."

Prelates from the Middle East opposed the declaration, citing opposition in their largely Moslem lands.

A key portion, which American cardinals and bishops had fought for, says: "The Jewish people should never be presented as one rejected, cursed or guilty of deicide — killing God."

2 Men Take One Pair Of Shoes From Store

San Rafael police today sought two men who stole a $7.50 pair of loafer shoes from Barney's Shoe Store, 821 Francisco Boulevard at 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

Owner Barney Gerstein told police one of the men pretended to be shopping for a pair of shoes, thus distracting a clerk's attention long enough for the other to leave the store with the shoes.

UTAH PATROL FORCED TO CHANGE ITS TUNE

PROVO, Utah (AP) — "Highway Patrol."

"Could you please play "I Wanna Hold Your Hand" for Buz and Mary, Lennie and Arlene, Joe and Carolyn . . ."

That happened once too often for the Utah Highway Patrol's Provo office. Its telephone number was only one digit away from a radio station with a record request program. The number was changed.

"Most of the requests," said chief dispatcher Richard D. Hall, "were for the Beatles."

Hub Couple Injured In Head-On Crash

A San Anselmo couple were slightly injured in a head-on collision at the crest of a blind hill on Deer Hollow Road at Oak Crest Drive in Sleepy Hollow at 4:45 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol said the cars were driven by Haliday Jeffries, 60, of 164 Camino De Herrera, San Anselmo, and Peter M. Past, 36, of 10 Oak Crest Drive, Sleepy Hollow.

Hurt were Jeffries, who suffered minor injuries, and his wife, Eleanore Jeffries, 55, who was treated for a cut knee at Marin General Hospital.

Past's station wagon apparently veered toward the center of the narrow street, the patrol said, before the cars collided. Each driver said he was unaware the other was coming until they hit at the hill's crest.

Makes Congo Appeal

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Kenya Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta today called on "all parties" in the Congo to cease hostilities pending negotiation on the fate of some 1,000 white hostages held by the rebels in Stanleyville.

Supervisors Seek Shift In Tax Burden

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — The County Supervisors Assn. of California has concluded its meeting with resolutions aimed at shifting more of the tax burden from property owners to consumers.

Supervisors voted unanimously yesterday in favor of two resolutions urging the Legislature to increase sales tax from 4 per cent to 4.5 per cent. The added revenue would go to the counties, enabling reductions in property tax.

One resolution called for blanket state legislation. The other asked for authorization to individual counties to raise sales tax if they wish.

Supervisors also passed resolutions proposing measures to permit counties to gain revenue in other ways.

A resolution on reapportionment won approval despite opposition from urban area supervisors. It called for a U.S. Constitutional amendment which would allow states to apportion one house of a legislature on the basis of "population and other factors."

Students Unsatisfied By U.C. Regents' Move

BERKELEY (AP) — Although they have a new and more liberal policy toward political action organized on campus, a group of students at the nation's largest university remain unsatisfied.

The Board of Regents of the University of California adopted without discussion yesterday a policy allowing students to solicit funds and recruit volunteers on campus for lawful off-campus politico-social activities. If off-campus activities planned on campus are unlawful, then the university can discipline the students involved.

"This constitutes prior restraint," charged Mario Savio, the 21-year-old leader of the dissident group.

"It violates the law," Savio told an orderly crowd estimated by police at 4,000 students gathered on a slope across the street from where the regents met. "It violates the Constitution."

He said the university would be taken to court if it "advocates these unconstitutional regulations."

Savio was one of eight students suspended until now for his part in a campus administration building sit-in that led to a 31-hour demonstration in front of the building at the beginning of October. The regents ended the students' suspensions as of yesterday.

The Free Speech Movement he leads is composed of a number of campus groups of various political persuasions. Most of them are concerned with civil rights and provided many demonstrators in mass protests against hiring practices of San Francisco hotels, auto agencies and supermarkets.

Before this semester, they operated on a 26-foot strip of sidewalk on the south edge of campus, although this technically was illegal. When they were barred from this strip—once one block outside the expanding university—the protests began.

University President Clark Kerr recommended to the Regents that they allow off-campus activities to be planned in "certain campus facilities, carefully selected and properly regulated . . ."

The regents quickly accepted this and decided to work out details at a later meeting. They declined to give an audience to five FSM members who had been allowed in the wood-paneled meeting room in University Hall.

"They took away our Constitutional rights and then gave some back to us," said Savio, who added that there already were conspiracy laws that could be used against students who used the campus to plot crimes.

Kerr said this was true but that it would "start bringing in outside district attorneys and police forces into the campus. They could now, but as a matter of fact they don't."

"We want to run our own affairs," said Kerr. "I don't know of a single member of the Board of Regents who would be willing to abdicate his control over the university under the State Constitution.

"We consider their FSM demands to be so extreme that the university could never grant them," Kerr declared. "The vast majority of the 27,400 students are against the university being used for a base for illegal acts."

Drivers Hurt In Rear-End Highway Crash

Both drivers were hurt yesterday morning in a rear-end crash on the southbound side of Waldo Grade on Highway 101, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said a car driven by Howard K. Horii, 23, of 514 Pineo Avenue, Tamalpais Valley, hit that of John D. Rogers, 48, of San Francisco.

Rogers was treated at Marin General Hospital for acute back strain. Horii said he would see his own doctor for treatment.

The accident occurred, the patrol reported, as Horii glanced in his rear-view mirror in an effort to change lanes, not seeing when Rogers' car stopped ahead of him.

Horii was cited for an unsafe lane change.

Man, Woman Hurt In Crash

A man and a woman suffered neck pains yesterday after a three-car rear-end crash on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at College Avenue in Kentfield.

Hurt were Emilie T. Lose, 46, of 63 Glen Drive, Sausalito, and Clyde K. Yamamoto, 18, of 412 Laverne Avenue, Homestead Valley.

The California Highway Patrol said Yamamoto's car, which was behind that of Mrs. Lose, was hit from the rear by the convertible driven by Glenn T. Jackson, 25, of 40 Gustafson Court, Novato.

All were northbound, the patrol said. The accident took place at 10:10 a.m. yesterday.

Today is Saturday, Nov. 21, the 326th day of 1964 with 40 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1877, Thomas Edison announced the invention of what he called "the talking machine."

In 1933, William Bullitt started his job as the first American Ambassador to Russia.

In 1938, the Nazis forcibly took over the western border areas of Czechoslovokia, making all inhabitants in the area German citizens.

A thought for the day: American poet Walt Whitman said: "Once fully enslaved, no nation, no state or city of this earth, ever afterwards resumes its liberty."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It Is A Good Idea To Show Singleton, Let Partner Decide

Slams that depend on distribution are hard to bid. If you have a singleton, you may fear that partner has strength in that suit with fatal weakness elsewhere.

And if your partner has the singleton, you may fear the loss of two tricks in that suit unless you find out about the singleton.

Experts solve this kind of problem by showing the singleton and allowing partner to decide whether or not the singleton is useful.

OTHER SUIT

You show a singleton by bidding the other three suits, preferably with a jump bid somewhere along the way. By showing length in three suits you indicate shortness in the fourth suit.

North used this method in the hand shown today. He began with a jump response in hearts, continued by showing diamonds, and completed his story with a show of spade support.

This showed about 19 points (counting distribution as well as high cards) with a singleton in clubs.

LOW CLUBS

South would have been worried about his two low clubs if he had not found out about the singleton. The actual bidding induced him to jump right to the slam.

South would have stayed out of the slam if he had held clubs headed by king-queen, with spades headed by just the queen.

His own hand would have been one point stronger, but the combined hands would produce only eleven tricks instead of twelve.

EASY PLAY

There was no problem in the play of the cards. West opened the king of clubs and then shifted to a diamond.

Declarer played the ace of diamonds from dummy, got to his hand with a trump, and ruffed his last club with dummy's ace of trumps.

South then overtook the ten of spades to draw the rest of the trumps. He could then run four hearts to get rid of the jack of diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ 7 5 3 2
♥ None
♦ 10 8 5 3 2
♣ A K Q J

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two clubs:

At your next turn you will raise spades with great enthusiasm (to game). This shows the location of your strength more accurately than an immediate raise to three spades.

Doc Hands Clay A Humiliating Defeat

BOSTON (AP) — For the brash Cassius Clay the public knows, his first post-operative press conference must have been humiliating.

The Mouth admitted "I can't talk too loud."

He had to remain seated in a wheel chair.

Then Dr. James V. McDermott Jr., authored a defeat of Clay when he termed Cassius "a very normal, 22-year-old youngster."

Dr. McDermott performed the hernia operation one week ago which forced cancellation of the scheduled heavyweight title fight Nov. 16 between champion Clay and challenger Sonny Liston at Boston Garden.

"If he feels up to it, we'll let him go home next Friday," Dr. McDermott said. "If he lived around here, he could leave tomorrow, but he wants to go to Chicago."

"Just the fight being cancelled hurt me more than the pain of the operation," said Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali. "I was in the best condition of my life . . . and Liston was in the best condition of his life . . . there would have been no physical excuses for him this time.

Clay took the title from Liston Feb. 25 in Miami when Sonny couldn't continue past the sixth round with a left shoulder injury.

Clay said he felt sorry for everybody who lost money because of the postponement and even for Liston because of "all that hard work for a man his age."

"I think the fight should come off in about six months," he added. "I'm going to be right back in Boston as soon as I'm ready."

GIANTS SWAP CARDENAL FOR ANGELS CATCHER

The San Francisco Giants announced today that they had traded outfielder Jose Cardenal for a 23-year-old right hand hitting catcher who has been in the Los Angeles Angels organization.

Giant Vice President Charles Feeney said the team had acquired Jack Hiatt who played last year with Honolulu in the Pacific Coast League. Hiatt, a 6-foot-2, 195-pound native of Bakersfield, hit 318 in 125 games last year, slamming 23 homers and knocking in 83 runs.

Hiatt now makes San Fernando his home.

Cardenal spent most of last year with Tacoma, Wash., in the PCL where he hit .289. He finished the season with the Giants.

49er Kiddie Corps Faces Bears

Important Game For Both Teams

CHICAGO (AP)—Figuring it's best not to tamper with success, the San Francisco 49ers will give their kiddie-corps backfield a second straight starting role Sunday against the Chicago Bears.

The game has special significance for Coach Jack Christiansen—if his 49ers win, they'll escape the Western Division basement of the National Football League for the first time since he took over as head mentor midway through last season.

In the Bears, the 49ers will meet a weaker but still not toothless version of the club that last year won the NFL title.

And while they share the division cellar with San Francisco, each with 3-7 records, the Bears last week showed signs of coming out of hibernation with a 34-24 victory over Los Angeles.

For both the 49ers and Bears, some seldom - heard names proved the difference last weekend.

George Mira, the rookie from Miami, directed San Francisco's attack throughout the game. Although he fumbled four times, the flashy Mira sparked several scoring drives with his passing and running.

Two other first-year men, fullback Mike Lind and halfback Dave Kopay, also showed well against the Packers and will start against Chicago.

Rudy Bukich, a second-string quarterback for several NFL teams, replaced regular starter Billy Wade against Los Angeles nd picked up 271 yards through the air for the Bears. Coach George Halas says he'll get another starting shot Sunday.

In Mike Ditka and Johnny Morris, the Bears have two of the league's better pass catchers. Morris already has hauled in 77 passes this year, only seven short of the NFL season record, while Ditka is a perennial all-star pick at tight end.

The 49ers downed the Bears 31-21 earlier in the season in San Francisco, but John Brodie was San Francisco's quarterback then and passed for three touchdowns.

Games Tomorrow To Decide Who Will Get First Draft Choices

Randol

With just a week to go before the annual draft of college football players by the professional leagues, about the only thing left to be settled is which team gets first crack at this year's crop of goodies. The team with the poorest record after tomorrow's games is in the number one spot.

By coincidence, the National Football League schedule pits the tail-enders against each other tomorrow, with the San Francisco 49ers meeting the Chicago Bears (both 3 won, 7 lost) and the New York Giants (2-6-2) playing the Pittsburgh Steelers (3-7).

These teams are supposed to play to win every time, but it must be a great temptation to drop this one and be first in line at the raw meat counter. A case of pride vs. hunger.

By upsetting the Green Bay Packers last week the 49ers did themselves out of the choice position in the draft. The Bears kept pace by downing the L.A. Rams. Maybe the Niners and the Bears can cook up a tie.

ACTUALLY, THE Bears can't suffer too much in any case. Trades made in the past have given them the first round picks of both the Steelers and the Washington Redskins, who are just a notch above the four poorest clubs in the standing.

The Niners get an extra pick in the first round, too, but it will be the 13th choice, belonging to the Cleveland Browns who lead the Eastern Conference. This was part of the deal that sent Ted Connolly to the Brownies.

OF COURSE, the big question is not WHEN the 49ers will choose, but WHOM will they choose.

Coach Jack Christiansen has indicated that he has his sights set on a speedy halfback. Admittedly the need is there. Next in line must be a couple of big, fast offensive guards who can get out in front of the speedster.

Should there be another Jim Brown or Jim Taylor waiting to be picked up, Coach Jack won't turn his back. Personally, I think Mike Lind has done a terrific job this year and has the makings of a great fullback.

THE NINERS have a great, young defensive unit. There won't be many changes there next year. Add five better than average rookies to the club as it is now constituted and the 49ers could be title contenders within two years. Keep your fingers crossed.

Losers Become Winners In NFL

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The last shall be first after the National Football League's battle of the basement is decided tomorrow at Chicago and New York.

While Baltimore shoots for the Western Division title at Los Angeles and Cleveland tries to lengthen its Eastern Division lead at Green Bay, the defrocked Bears and Giants play hosts in a four-club cellar struggle. And the losers may turn out to be winners.

The first choice in next Saturday's NFL draft of college stars will be at stake when the Bears play San Francisco and the Giants meet Pittsburgh .

If the Giants, 2-6-2, lose to the Steelers, 3-7, they will get the first pick —which goes to the team with the worst won-lost record at the completion of Sunday's games. If the Steelers lose, they'll share the bottom of the pile with the Bears-49ers loser and a coin flip will determine who kicks off the draft.

The Bears, who have acquired Pittsburgh's first-round pick in a trade, conceivably could wind up with the first two selections in the grab-bag.

Last-place finishes by New York and Chicago in the East and West, respectively, would mark the first time in NFL history that both division champions made the full tumble. The Bears topped the Giants 14-10 in last year's championship playoff.

In Sunday's other games Detroit, mathematically alive in the Western race, plays Minnesota; St. Louis, second to Cleveland in the East, visits Philadelphia and Dallas is at Washington.

The Colts, bidding for a title-clinching 10th straight triumph, may find the Rams harder to handle than in their first meeting. The Colts won that one 35-20 on three long Johnny Unitas-Jimmy Orr touchdown passes in the second half.

Since then, Los Angeles has unveiled three offensive stars — quarterback Roman Gabriel, rookie pass-catcher Bucky Pope and rookie running back Les Josephson. Tackle Frank Varrichione, bulwark of the Rams' offensive line, set out last week's loss to Chicago but is slated to play against the Colts, whose veteran end, Raymond Berry, may be unavailable.

The Browns are two victories away from the Eastern title but could wrap it up Sunday if they upend the favored Packers while the Cardinals lose to Philadelphia. The inter-division game will match the league's Nos. 1 and 2 rushers, Jimmy Brown of Cleveland and Jim Taylor of Green Bay.

Cap'n Ed Sparks Seal Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Seals, paced by a pair of two-goal performances by Capt. Eddie Panagabko and Charlie Burns, skated to a 6-3 victory over the Victoria Maple Leafs last night.

It was the Seals' fifth Western Hockey League win of the year against 12 losses. They moved into a fifth place tie with the Maple Leafs.

Victoria jumped to an early 2-0 lead on scores by Gordon Redahl and Larry Keenan in the first 10 minutes of play.

Panagabko tapped in his first goal at 13:50 of the first period to start things going for the defending WHL champs.

In an explosive second period, Panagabko scored his second goal at just 22 seconds and Del Topoll scored less than a minute later.

Victoria's Lou Jankowski tied the game at 3-3 on a rebound shot, but Burns sent the Seals ahead to stay with his first goal.

San Francisco's final two tallies were scored in the third period by Al Nicholson and Burns.

Burns' final score was a spectacular breakaway from midice.

Victoria rookie Rollie Wilcox and veteran Seal defenseman Jean Marc Picard tangled briefly in a flurry of hard punches with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

The referee broke up the scuffle and the two were dealt a total of 13 minutes in penalties. The Seals host Victoria again this evening.

6 San Rafael Cadets On All-League Team

Six members of the champion San Rafael Military Academy Cadets football team have been named to the All-Bay Counties League team.

Receiving the honors are halfback Roger Ulrich, fullback Mel Baruh, defensive wingback Rod Goodwin, guard Chris Candee, tackle Mark Jory and end Mel Smith. Coaches of the league will meet Tuesday to decide on the first and second teams.

Ulrich, who gained 1,220 yards rushing for the team this season, also received awards as the most valuable player and the outstanding back at an awards banquet at the academy last Monday.

Other Cadets receiving awards were Candee, outstanding lineman; Len Ingrassia, most inspirational; Rick Lawton, most improved; Baruh, iron man (played the most minutes in the season); and George O'Neill, most valuable player in the Little Big Game against Menlo.

Winning all six of their league games, the Cadets averaged 24 points per game against only 8 for the opposition en route to the championship. It was the first championship for a SRMA football team since 1947 when the Cadets were in the old Private Schools Conference of Northern California.

Salesian was the only team to down the Cadets out of nine games. That was a 33-0 shellacking by a team that went through the season undefeated. It was a non-league affair, the second game of the season for the Cadets.

The other two practice games for the Cadets were victories, 19-7 over the Terra Linda Ramblers and 13-7 over Tomales Bay. In league action, SRMA triumphed over Emory 27-7, St. Vincent's, 19-12, Half Moon Bay 21-7, California School for the Deaf (Berkeley) 13-0, Lick Wilmerding 19-7, and Menlo 18-15.

Sticking mostly to the ground, the Cadets rolled up a total of 2,600 yards an average of 289 yards per game. Ulrich, with his 1,220 yards, accounted for almost half of that yardage. He was the first gridder in the academy's history to gain more than 1,000 yards in a single season.

Baruh almost made it to the one thousand mark, gaining a total of 950 yards. Head coach for the SRMA boys was Don Baikie and Jim Hickey was the assistant coach.

World Assn. Sets Own Title Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Ernie Terrell and Cleveland Williams will meet for the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight boxing championship.

The WBA, which has stripped Cassius Clay of the title, said yesterday that Terrell and Williams, ranked first and second respectively by the organization, will fight for the vacated crown at a time and place to be announced later.

The winner then will defend his title against the survivor of a fight, scheduled for Jan. 29, between former champion Floyd Patterson of New York and George Chuvalo of Toronto.

Patterson, ranked No. 3 by the WBA, and Chuvalo, No. 4, have agreed to meet in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

The original WBA plan called for fights between Terrell, from Philadelphia, and Chuvalo and between Patterson and Williams, who is from Houston, with the winners meeting for the title. That, however, was before the WBA learned Patterson and Chuvalo already were scheduled to meet each other.

The WBA made no mention of Clay, former champion, or Sonny Liston. They were to have fought in a title bout in Boston last Monday, but Clay had to undergo surgery for a hernia.

Clay's business manager, Bill Faversham, doubted that the public would accept the Terrell-Williams winner as champion.

"I don't believe the press or public will recognize either Williams who was knocked out by Liston twice or Terrell, who was Clay's sparring partner twice, as champion of the world," he said.

Raiders Have Old Score To Settle

OAKLAND (AP)—It took the Oakland Raiders 10 games to escape the Western Division cellar of the American Football League.

Now the Raiders will be looking toward second place when they entertain the much-improved New York Jets at Frank Youell Field tomorrow.

The Raiders, 2-7-1 after last week's 20-10 defeat of Houston, have a score to settle with the Jets. New York helped put Oakland in the AFL basement by stomping the Raiders 35-13 in an early season contest.

New York, a nearly unanimous pre-season pick for last in the AFL's Eastern Division, is 4-4-1.

A big part of the credit for New York's unexpected success is attributable to rookie Matt Snell, second in the league in rushing with 650 yards on 141 carries.

Jets quarterback Dick Wood also enjoys two of the league's best receivers in Bake Turner, 41 catches for 716 yards, and Don Maynard, 31 for 687.

Clem Daniels, last year's AFL most valuable player, flashed his 1963 form against Houston and picked up 104 yards. That performance earned Daniels fourth place among the loop's rushers with 487 yards and a 4.3-yard average per carry.

Despite the resurgence of Daniels and the steady running skill of fullback Billy Cannon, the Raiders live by the pass. Quarterbacks Cotton Davidson and Tom Flores have totaled 375 passes, second most in the league.

Art Powell, having another banner year at split end, has caught 52 passes for 958 yards and eight Raider touchdowns.

An Oakland victory, coupled with a Houston upset of Kansas City, would leave the Raiders just a game out of second place.

The kickoff is scheduled for 1:35 p.m.

New Record In Yacht Race

MAZATLAN, Mexico (UPI)—The last boat of a 43-yacht fleet was scheduled to cross the finish line today behind Sirius II which set a new elapsed time record in the 1,000-mile Los Angeles-to-Mazatlan race.

The powerful 82-foot sloop, owned by Howard Ahmanson of Los Angeles, completed the sometimes wild journey yesterday, minus three headsails in 5 days, 20 hours and 30 minutes. The front wing of the fleet was caught in 40-knot winds as it sailed across the Gulf of California.

Among the last boats scheduled to dock here were Queen Nab, Legend and Santana with Tanea from Santa Barbara on the tail end of the fleet.

Second to round Cape San Lucas off Baja California and cross the finish line yesterday was Kialoa II, a 73-foot sloop owned by John Kilroy. It logged a time of five days, 19 hours, 25 minutes and 26 seconds.

Sirus II had been about a mile behind Kialoa II in the final stretch across the Gulf of Mazatlan, but overtook the smaller craft during the wild night despite having lost three headsails in the nippy winds.

Third to finish was Baldwin M. Baldwin's 73-foot yawl Aucadious.

Llewellyn Bixby's 43-foot yawl, Typee, failed to report last night at roll call after leading on handicap time for the past three days.

Eventual winner of the annual ocean trek will be decided on a corrected time basis.

FROM GOLF CART TO A LA CARTE

Getting in trim for the trimmings with a last loving look at the Peacock Gap golf links are two of three Thanksgiving birds which have been on display outside the club's dining room the past week. Though their ability to drive a golf cart seems to dismay greens keeper Bill Menear, he is not nearly as dismayed as the gobblers who realize they have only a few more days to pursue their favorite sport. Peacock golfers will play their annual Turkey Tournament starting at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow and guess what the prizes are. Oh, well, golf cart today—a la carte tomorrow. (Ken Molino photo)

TERRA LINDA BACK, TOMALES LINEMAN

Top Scholar-Gridders Named

Rick Edwards, Terra Linda halfback, and Wayne Parks, center for Tomales Joint Union High School, have been named Marin County winners of the scholar-athlete awards sponsored by the Northern California chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

The selections were made on unanimous votes of a three-man committee consisting of Donald Kreps, principal of Redwood High School; Marlin Olsen, head football coach at Novato High, and Ralph Chatoian, Independent-Journal sports writer.

Edwards and Parks, voted the outstanding senior back and lineman respectively, will receive their awards at the chapter's fifth annual awards banquet scheduled Dec. 10 at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco. Winners from the other Bay Area counties also will receive their awards at that time.

The selections are based on academic achievements, football talent, and school participation. Candidates must be seniors.

Other linemen nominated were tackle Chris Candee from San Rafael Military Academy, tackle Lee Jamison from Drake High School, tackle Doug Barker from Terra Linda High, and guard Bob Ramsey from San Rafael.

Other backs nominated by their schools were quarterback Will Stubblebine from Tamalpais, fullback Joe DeMasi from Drake, and halfback Roger Ulrich from San Rafael Military Academy.

Edwards, 17, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards of 365 Nova Albion Way, Terra Linda. The 5-10, 165-pound speedster is the team's captain and plays first string on both offense and defense. He's the Trojans' leading ground gainer and scorer through the season.

Edwards has a 3.49 grade point average and has been on the honor roll for three years. He's also vice president of the Junior Service Honorary Club for school activities.

Parks, also 17, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Parks of Tomales. Weighing 165 pounds and standing 6-0, he is the top defensive player on the Tomales team, averaging 15 tackles per game. He's the team co-captain.

He has an overall grade point average of 3.76 and so far this semester is carrying all A's. He has been a member of the California Scholarship Federation (CSF) six semesters and has been on the honor roll all of those semesters. Parks also is the student body president at Tomales High.

WET SHOT — Golf star Arnold Palmer bends over to spot his ball in the drink as it fell short of the green and landed in a pond during yesterday's action in the Cajun Classic at Lafayette, La. ARNIE 'N' JACK ALL TIED UP

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The ninth hole on the Oakbourne Country Club course is a short par three affair but it's troubling Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus—who are locked in battle for the top fairway money honors of the year—as well as the rest of the pros playing in the $25,000 Cajun Classic golf tourney.

The trouble with No. 9 is the strategically placed lagoon in front of the green plus buildings, bushes and the tees to two other holes behind it.

"It's the toughest hole on the course," says Ken Still of Washington, one of the young tour regulars still seeking his first big victory.

Just about the only pro not singing the blues about the ninth hole after yesterday's first round was Dick Chassee, a teaching pro from Covington, La.

Chassee took his 2-iron and aced the hole, registering the 19th hole in one this year on the play-for-pay circuit.

Frank Beard, the bespectacled Louisville, Ky., swinger whose five under par 67 gave him the first round lead, had a bogey on No. 9.

Palmer, the fairway capitalist from Pennsylvania, got a double bogey five there. Had he not gone in the drink, he probably would have parred the hole for a 66 and the lead.

As it was, Palmer had a 68—good enough to deadlock him in second place with his longtime challenger from Ohio, Nicklaus, and two other pros—volatile Dave Hill and rookie Cotton Dunn of Duncan, Okla.

Hill, the 136-pound crewcut youngster from Jackson, Mich., was the only one of the top five to play No. 9 in par. Nicklaus, Beard and Dunn all bogeyed it.

Rain washed out Thursday's round — and Palmer is probably thankful for the downpour. It canceled his 74.

Until the thunderstorms, Lafayette — smallest stop on the PGA circuit — was enjoying Indian Summer. Then the mercury skidded to the low 40s and stayed there throughout yesterday. The same forecast held for today.

Palmer, winner of more than $111,000 this year, is shooting for his third consecutive money championship.

PROPWASH

By ELEANOR FREEMAN

There's Much More To A Prop Than Just Pitch And Diameter

Sometime toward the last of October a boater pulled his boat out on the Sausalito ramp. It was early afternoon and the tide was just right for a few more hours. Weather was tops, water smooth.

It was also plain to see that his wife and two teenage boys were disappointed. They wanted to keep on skiing. Father, though, had had it. In loud tones he declared no one, but no one, was going to make a monkey out of him another minute.

Out of exasperation and wounded pride he was more than willing to talk about it. In a simple declarative sentence, he summed it up, "My boat is slow," he said. Qualifying it further, he continued, "Take a look out there," and he waved his arm toward the bay, "any boat you can see the size of mine can run rings around me with half my horse power. I've got a 15-footer with a 75 horse power engine, and I congratulate myself every time I finally get my skier pulled up."

HE WAS willing to answer some questions while securing his rig. Yes, he had his motor recently checked. Didn't even need a tune up. It had occurred to him too that perhaps tilting the transom angle differently might help. It didn't.

No, it wasn't the fault of the boat. The hull was clean, and that particular model was a get-out-and-go performer—for all other boat owners. No, he had never taken his complete rig in to a marine dealer or mechanic and discussed the problem. "I just can't stand a mystery . . . thought sure I'd hit on the cure by myself."

As to a query about the prop, he thoughtfully tucked away life jackets in a forward compartment before answering. "Sure. I considered that too. Looked it over carefully for damage. No nicks, bent blades or anything else looking suspicious. Bought the boat and motor secondhand . . . m-mm . . . sa-a-ay, maybe the previous owner tried a little experimenting . . ."

BUT PROPS were items he knew nothing about, he admitted. Tomorrow he was going to have it checked by an expert who knew his business. Then appearing almost happy, he drove away.

Well, could be he was on the right track, finally. It's good also that he wasn't going to tackle it himself, because he could be in for a first-class mystery. There's so much more to a propeller than just the pitch and diameter. There are endless variations in the number of blades—and in their shapes.

The life of a motor depends to a great degree on proper prop installation which can add efficiency throughout the entire throttle range. On the other hand, operating a motor OVER or UNDER the full-throttle recommended operating R.P.M. may harm it.

QUESTION: I understand there's an unusually easy way to locate the waterline on my outboard craft. She's 18-foot, but imagine length wouldn't make much difference.

S. V., Sausalito

ANSWER: Arrange a load in your boat, near to normal as possible. Let it stay in the water until you notice a ring formed on the waterline. This develops from impurities in the water . . . oil, dirt and algae; and a more defined line will develop if your craft is in fairly calm water.

Pull your boat out. Then mark a line about one and a half inches above it. Paint then, using the standard masking procedure.

Pats Defeat Denver, 12-7

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's sputtering offense clicked for a second period touchdown and Gino Cappelletti's 50-yard field goal in the third period last night enabled the Patriots to whip the stubborn Denver Broncos 12-7.

The Patriots, still nursing a bright hope for the American Football League's Eastern Division title, found themselves on the short end of a 7-2 score at the close of the first quarter.

But quarterback Babe Parilli flipped a 26-yard scoring pass to Cappelletti, the league's top scorer, and the Patriots went in front to stay.

Cappelletti gave the Patriots more edge in the third quarter when his field goal just cleared the cross bar.

Hockey Aide Dies

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Murray Boyd, publicity director for the Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, was stricken with a heart attack in the Canucks' office here yesterday and died a short time later in hospital. He was 35.

A one minute period of silence was observed last night at Vancouver Forum where the Canucks played Portland's Buckaroos.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

Semi-Pros Hope To End Long Wet Spell

For the first time in four long weeks, the Marin County Semi-Pro Winter Baseball League will resume play tomorrow . . . if it doesn't rain. That has caused postponements the past three Sundays.

A doubleheader will be played at San Anselmo's Memorial Field starting at 11 a.m., and a solo-game will be staged at Project 17 field in Mill Valley, at 1:30 p.m.

In the first game of the twin bill, Maggi's Florist (2-0) will take on DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage (0-2). Lefthander Bill Ervin will throw for the Maggi's nine and will be opposed by righthander Laddie Richardson for the Garagemen.

In the second half of the doubleheader, the Pacifica Lions (0-2) will battle the Indian Valley Lumber nine (0-2). On the mound for Pacifica will be righthander Bud Dawson, while Jim Garrett will start for Indian Valley.

The Mill Valley Merchants (1-1) will host league-leading Billings-Hutchison Builders (3-0) at Project 17's field. It will be a battle of righthanders, with Ron Cole starting on the mound for the Builders against Keith Fraser of Mill Valley.

Top hitters in the league so far include Bob Brown of the Maggi Florist team, Dick Spackman of the Builders, Rich Barry of the Tiburon Sox (with the week's bye), and Art Mayer of the Mill Valley Merchants. All are over the .450 mark.

Royals Vs. Warriors Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Warriors, who have been beaten in all four home appearances so far this season at the Civic Auditorium, try again tonight, 8:30, against the Cincinnati Royals.

"I feel that the club is beginning to jell," Coach Alex Hannum said of the Warriors, who hold the NBA's Western Division playoff crown. "We've been hobbled by injuries ever since Wilt Chamberlain got sick before the season opened. Tonight will mark the first time this year we've even been close to top strength."

The Royals, led by Oscar Robertson, are returning after a two-game series in Los Angeles where they split with the Lakers.

San Francisco has been idle since Tuesday when it dropped a 114-108 decision to the Royals on the new hardwood of the Civic Auditorium. Other losses there this season have been to the Lakers, Baltimore Bullets and St. Louis Hawks without a win.

United Thanksgiving Rites Set

Marinwood, Mill Valley Joint Rites

Churchgoers of Marin will join in giving thanks next week in the pattern set by our nation's early colonists, who gave praise to the Lord for the blessings of survival and growth they had enjoyed through the year, and shared their bounty with others.

In addition to the traditional Thursday morning Thanksgiving services, a number of churches will join in inter-denominational services Wednesday evening.

A special ecumenical service of Thanksgiving will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Church of the Nativity (Episcopal), at 333 Ellen Drive, Marinwood. Sharing in and sponsoring the ritual will be a number of Marinwood and Terra Linda congregations including Aldersgate Methodist, Christ Presbyterian, Faith Lutheran, First Congregational and Marinwood - Lucas Valley Community Baptist Church.

One feature of the joint service will be an offering to support the work of the Marin County Council of Churches' chaplaincy program at the county juvenile hall.

Mill Valley churches also are joining in a common service at 8 p.m. Wednesday, with Tiburon Boulevard Baptist Church as the host congregation. Participating are Peace Lutheran Community Church, Church of Our Savior, Westminster Presbyterian, Methodist Church of Mill Valley and others.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Chancel Choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael will sing for the first time, "A short Communion Service — 1964" composed by the parish organist and choirmaster, Barry Mineah. (See story elsewhere on today's church page.)

All are welcome and no collection will be taken according to Mrs. Alys L. Wargin, assistant publicity chairman.

The Thanksgiving Day Proclamation of President Lyndon B. Johnson will be read and individual Christian Scientists will give voluntary expressions of gratitude "for the blessings which a more spiritual understanding of God and man had brought into their lives during the past year."

Tomorrow is the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Catholic parishioners in Marin County will join others throughout the nation in special Masses and prayers for the late national leader.

The 9:15 a.m. Mass in St. Raphael's Church will be a memorial Mass, and the congregation will remember President Kennedy in prayers at all the Masses, it was reported.

At the behest of the parish's teen-agers, the 9 a.m. Mass at St. Isabella's will be in memory of President Kennedy, and a special sermon will be preached.

Panel Series Will Commence

Unitarian Church of Marin will inaugurate tomorrow night, a new panel discussion series on sex, with the topic of "Lesbianism in Our Society."

The town-hall type meeting will be held from 8 to 10:15 p.m. in the Tamalpais Center Women's Club, Kentfield. Panelists will include two members of the Daughters of Bilitis, and psychiatrist Dr. Joseph Gudstadt, according to Robert F. Kaufman, who will be moderator.

Church Page

Communion Music To Have Its Debut

New communion service music will be introduced to the congregation by the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, at the Thanksgiving morning service.

The work, "A Short Communion Service—1964" was composed by the parish organist and choirmaster, Barry Mineah. It incorporates jazz and other secular music, according to St. Paul's Rector, The Rev. John Riley.

The new music will be used, whenever the communion is celebrated, as the "norm," Rev. Riley, said; thus the congregations will become familiar with it and "can use it for their own."

Composer Mineah explained that from Christian worship's very beginnings, it has been the practice of the church to take that which is "of the world" or "secular" and dedicate it to sacred purposes. Music, he added, is no exception.

Answering critics favoring the more "traditional" music of the church, Mineah recalled that street songs have been transformed into great Kyries, bawdy ballads and lively dances of yore have become the basis of some of the richest Christmas carols, and Alleluias and Hosannas have derived from the chant-cries of mobs of past ages.

"Since the popular ballad and jazz of today are the best expressions of society's life, the same must be used within our expression of worship," he added.

The Thanksgiving service at which the new work will be used for the first time will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The Rev. Russell Halaas of Palo Alto, regional youth director for the American Lutheran Church, will be guest speaker. A social hour will follow the program, which will begin at 7 p.m.

Invited to attend the rally are youth of Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Santa Rosa; Elim Lutheran, Petaluma; Good Shepherd Lutheran, Novato; Christ the Victor Lutheran, Fairfax, and Shepherd of the Hills, Tiburon, according to Rev. Gerald W. Garlid, pastor of the host church.

Commemoration Of Dead Is Due

Traditional Commemoration of the Dead will be a feature of tomorrow's service in Trinity Lutheran Church, San Rafael.

The congregation will remember "all those who have died in the Lord with special reference to those who have died within the current Church Year," the pastor, Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger, said.

Tomorrow marks the last Sunday of the Church Year.

Americans—Have They Quit Caring?

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Maybe it is time somebody started a drive to "keep the thanks in Thanksgiving."

No religious holiday has suffered a greater erosion of meaning than the one Americans will celebrate next Thursday. It's supposed to be a day for counting blessings. But it has become a day for eating too much and watching football games.

Have we forgotten how to be grateful for the highest living standards the world has ever known?

Each year, church leaders troop up to Capitol Hill to urge congressional approval of foreign aid programs. And even while they're testifying, congressmen get sacks of mail from church members who say they don't want any more of their tax money used to raise living standards in distant countries.

This mail might be interpreted as a reaction against poor administration and waste. But private relief agencies such as Church World Service, Catholic Relief Services, and CARE run into the same "I've got mine so don't bother me about the other guy" attitude.

Next week, Church World Service will launch its annual Thanksgiving season appeal for funds to finance food shipments to hungry families in 42 countries.

It is asking for one million dollars—which comes to just 2½ cents per member of the Protestant denominations which sponsor Church World Service.

You may think that generous Americans would quickly oversubscribe such a modest sum. But don't bet on it.

Will anyone actually suffer if Church World Service is short of funds?

Yes, they will. The supplies of dry milk which relief agencies used to get free from the Agriculture Department's farm surplus stocks have about run out. The agencies have two alternatives: Buy milk, or shut down the free milk canteens for undernourished children in such places as Hong Kong, Taiwan, Algeria and the Congo.

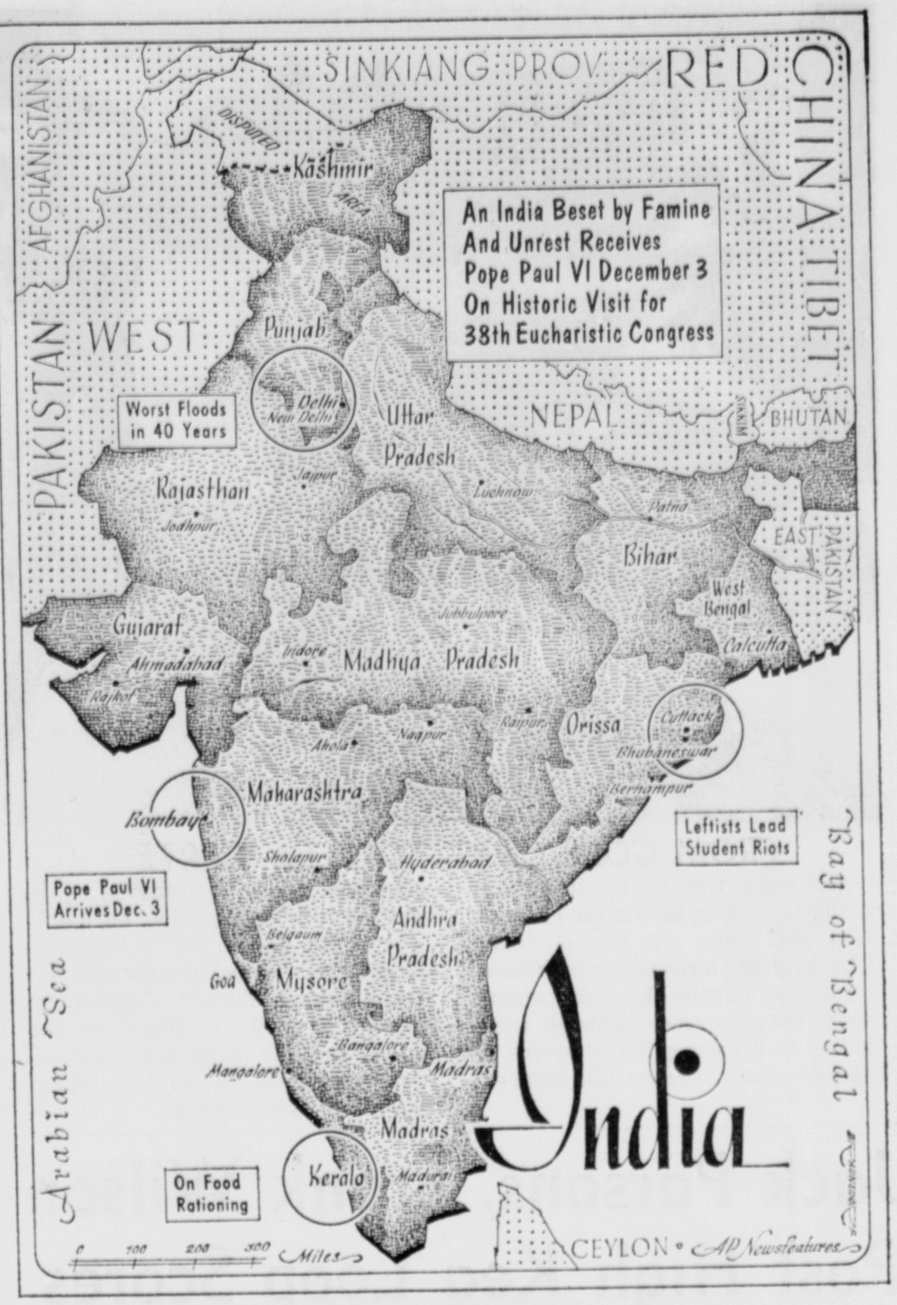
The warning brought a letter from a missionary nurse in the Congo.

"At least two-thirds of the babies who fill up our pediatrics ward suffer from malnutrition," she wrote. "The two daily cups of milk they have been receiving is their greatest source of nourishment.

"This cup of milk, given in the name of Christ . . . how can we bear to withdraw it? How does one go about explaining to a listless, ailing child that the American people, so generous, so admired, have just decided to quit caring?"

United Nations Report

Norma Neal, a senior at San Rafael High School, will tell of her experiences as a youth delegate to the United Nations last summer at a potluck dinner of the Tamalpais Valley Community Methodist Church, 6:30 p.m. Monday, at the church. The church is at Ash Street and Marin Avenue.



Pope May Witness Turmoil, Trouble On Visit To India

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When the plane sets down in Bombay, Pope Paul VI will step into history.

He will also step into a teeming subcontinent lashed by natural disasters, plagued by food shortages, torn by racial and religious strife.

He may even see the signs as he enters India's largest city (over 4 million population): "Mr. Pope Go Home."

For India's viewpoints, even as its problems, are multitudinous.

Pope Paul, the first reigning head of the Roman Catholic Church ever to visit India, is expected to arrive Dec. 3, for a three-day visit to the 38th International Eucharistic Congress. Hundreds of Catholic leaders from Asia will be there. One of them will be India's first and only cardinal, Valerian Cardinal Gracias.

India is not a Catholic country. Less than 7 million Indians are Catholics, in a population of 480 million people.

The visit comes at a particularly difficult time for India. Since the death of Nehru, the government of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri has been beset by floods, famine, leftwing subversion and religious strife.

Last year's wheat crop was bad. This fall, floods in the Punjab and the New Delhi area, the worst in 40 years, inundated a quarter of a million acres.

India has decreed food rationing for the state of Kerala (10 ounces of rice or grain daily), and is talking of rationing in all cities over a million—Bombay, Calcutta, New Delhi, Madras, Ahmadabad and Bangalore, and "informal rationing" in the nation's 105 cities of over 100,000 population.

In the state of Orissa, students rioted over strict university regulations. Soon left-wing agitators took over, attempting to embarrass Shastri's government. Army reinforcements were sent to the Orissa capital of Bhubaneswar and there were deaths, injuries and the jailing of Communist leaders.

Into this India will come Pope Paul, and the signs are already up in Bombay: "Mr. Pope Go Home." There are wall posters in New Delhi deploring the visit. But the Pope is under official invitation, and Prime Minister Shastri has said he will attend the congress in Bombay. Appealing against the opposition minorities, he said "the essence of Hinduism lies in its respect for all religions."

Swami R. Ananda, secretary of the All-India Association of Hindu Holy Men, said the Pope "will be our honored guest." He added: "The one thing we do not like is the tendency to condemn non-Christians as heathens who have no place in heaven, and attempts to proselytize." Some rightists have petitioned the high court in Bombay to forbid the visit, on the grounds that the Indian constitution forbids state help to any religion.

But the Pope is expected in Bombay, and he may also visit New Delhi and Goa. Around him he will see the ancient problems of an ancient land.

First Methodist Church of San Rafael and other supporters of Church World Service, have designated Nov. 29 as "blanket Sunday" and urge all churchgoers to bring to the services blankets which may be used for the worldwide relief organization's project in such disaster-stricken places as the flooded areas of Korea and South Vietnam.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Charlatan And His Audience May Both Suffer Unbalance

VAN DELLEN

Disturbed interpersonal relationships, especially in marital partners, often result in bizarre behavior by either or both. Capt. Bernard H. Wittenberg reports in the American Journal of Psychiatry the case history of a sergeant who gratified his unconscious emotional needs by carrying on a fabrication about working on a space project. The tall tales lasted six years. When he told his wife the truth, she went to pieces.

AS A BOY, he was left to himself, and read voraciously. King Arthur was his particular hero. Later, he had five years of college (but no degree) and was washed out of officer's candidate school because of poor scholastic performance. He married a woman with a master's degree in education. She tended to be critical of his ability to rise in the world. She criticized his upbringing, took over the family finances, and insisted she was "smarter" than he.

This woman became pregnant and went to her parents' home in a distant city to await the baby. While she was away, the sergeant went to the movies several nights a week, and, on the day of her return, he didn't want to miss a picture he had planned on seeing. He told his wife he couldn't spend the evening with her because he was working on a secret project in space. Through the years, he weaved a science fiction tale about his job that could have become a best seller. His "smart" wife swallowed it all—that he had orbited not only the moon but Mars and Venus. The sergeant finally ran out of ideas, or his conscience bothered him. But when he tried to convince his wife that the whole thing had been imaginary, she refused to believe it.

HE CONSULTED the psychiatric service, saying he feared his wife had become mentally ill because of his big lie. Dr. Wittenberg likens the situation to an imposter and his audience; unless the audience responds, the charlatan fails. He said this woman "supported, sustained, and nourished her husband's imposture and was herself supported, sustained, and nourished by it. The intensity of her emotional dependence upon the imposture is betrayed by her psychotic regression when her husband shed his space facade." We can only hope the sergeant will stick to reality and leave the super-achievements to the scientists.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

Pope Changes Fasting Rule

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI, following requests of bishops from around the world, today ruled that both priests and faithful need fast only one hour before receiving Holy Communion.

Prior to 1958, it was necessary to fast—meaning neither to eat nor drink—from midnight of the night before Communion. But in 1958 Pope Pius XII ruled that the faithful could not take food nor alcohol for three hours before Communion and liquids for one hour before receiving the sacrament.

For priests, the time was the same, but was set before they started Mass, rather than taking Communion.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Heart Goes Out To 'The Rogues'

By RICK du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—My heart goes out to the NBC-TV series called "The Rogues." I have no special admiration for the show. But you may have read recently that a group of boys in these parts who were held in connection with some burglaries called themselves "The Rogues" and said they were influenced by video. That is all the anti-violence establishment needs.

I feel sorry for "The Rogues" of NBC-TV because, as a reviewer, I feel something of a kinship for a show in that neither of us is remembered for the good days we have, only the bad. In addition, the professional anti-violence-on-television fighters are hard to talk to in anything but black-and-white terms, which is strange because many of these fellows are the same sort who tell you in other matters that we cannot look for simple solutions, that the world is complex and we must be careful in dealing with subtleties.

In these other matters, of course, they are right. And I am certainly not here advocating violence on television in an indiscriminate form. I think, rather, of a superlative series — in execution — called "The Untouchables," which has been unfairly whacked about as though television had the same function as a class in Hygiene.

NBC's "The Rogues" is, of course, a rather non-violent series, dealing with a group of charming crooks, but needless to say, even this aspect has left it open to silly comment.

"Studies made here and in Great Britain show that television watching in general has little or no effect on the development of children." Now this statement startled me somewhat, and I am by no means ready to accept it as the gospel, though well it may be, but since it tends to support at least part of my case I hasten to use it to sway you even more. It was, by the way, written in a television piece for Woman's Day magazine (December issue).

But back to "The Rogues" and the sad fact that we all seem to be remembered mostly for our bad days. In the sane world, where good news was news too, perhaps we might have heard of a young boy from the wrong side of the tracks who won a scholarship to Oxford, and revealed to panting admirers that it all started when he saw Charles Boyer on "The Rogues" — or some other previous, similar effort — and decided then and there to be a polished, civilized gentleman, and a credit to society. This has not happened, but I only bring up to show you there can always be another side — yet as everyone knows, letter-writers who have nice things to say rarely write.

One could go on and on. For example, what of the young people who, after watching "The Defenders" and "Perry Mason," might have decided to became lawyers? We never hear of them. We never will. Do they exist? Who knows? They are not news. Likewise, what of the youngsters who perhaps decided they were interested in becoming doctors after watching "Ben Casey" or "Dr. Kildare"? Same story. And though I admit this may not be the best reason for wanting to become a doctor or a lawyer, it is on the plus side.

If we are looking for television that does harm, we might, for instance, examine some of the atrocious values that are heaped upon us by the commercials. I contend strongly that dramatically justified violence does far less harm than many of these values. And as for television that passes on values that may not be obviously harmful but is stultifying in its long-range blandness that pretends to be an admirable way of life, I offer you such programs as "Karen" and the Patty Duke series.

CHANNEL SWIM: Roy Wilkins of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People is interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" tomorrow . . . Quin O'Hara, former "Miss Scotland," is one of the few beauty queens to hang on as a Hollywood actress, recently appearing in "The Rogues" and "Burke's Law," . . . John Astin, who sport a stogies in ABC-TV's "The Addams Family," is supplied with all the smokes he wants by the Cigar Institute of America.

Ocean Next Target For Exploration

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Get wet, young man.

The variation of Horace Greeley's famous advice comes from Dr. John W. Clark of Battle Memorial Institute.

He urges exploration of the depths of the sea, as well as the reaches of space, and notes that space exploration technology can be invaluable in developing the ocean.

Why go down into what Dr. Clark concedes is "a cold, dark, unfriendly place?"

Because, he wrote in Battelle's "Technical Review," the world's available natural resources could be increased 50 per cent by developing the continental shelves which stretch out underwater from most coasts.

The potential for food, minerals and salvage broadens considerably when the entire underwater area—nearly 71 per cent of the earth's surface—is considered, Clark adds.

Ocean engineering, a relatively new area of technology and research in which Clark is a leader at Battelle, can select, design, build, operate and maintain the equipment needed, he says.

As in space travel, man must take his atmosphere with him, or use remote-control equipment, Clark says. Manual work in the depths, he continues, can be done using protective diving gear, commercial submarines and telechiric systems remotely controlled by specialists who are dry, safe and comfortable.

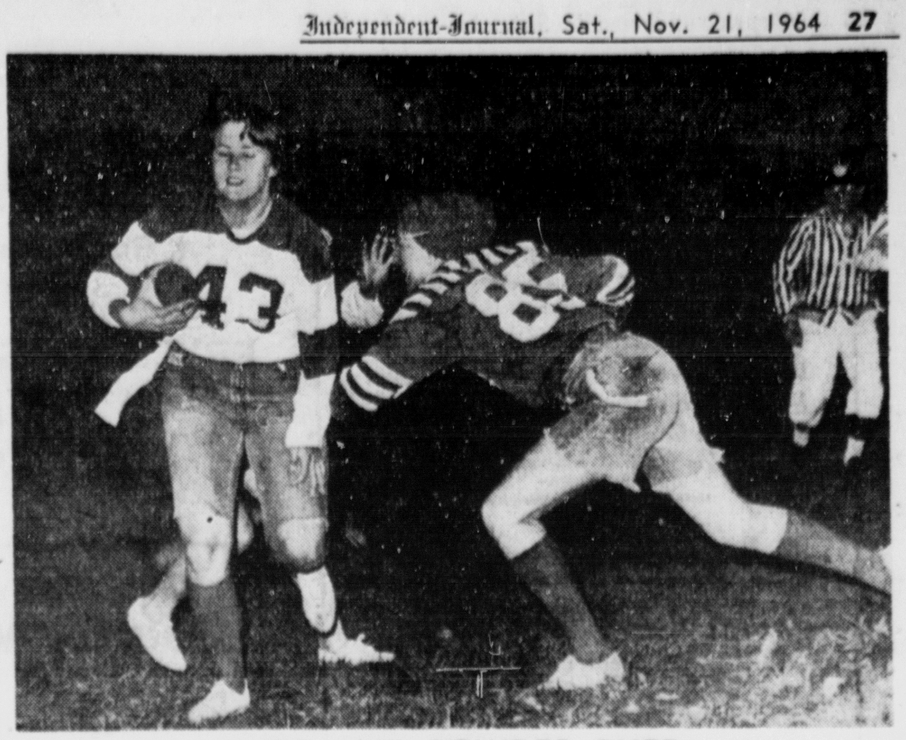
Even submarine-supplied settlements on the bottom are a feasible — albeit expensive — prospect, the researcher says.

The cost of seeking the sea's rewards will be in manpower, time, equipment and money, Clark says, and new problems may appear, such as application of international law.

Working with remote-handling devices in nuclear laboratores contributed to his growing interest in ocean engineering, the Battelle research coordinator explains.

But he admits he hasn't been down to plumb the depths himself, although he thinks he eventually will.

"Right now," he says with a grin, "I'm like the swimming teacher who walks around the edge of the pool, falls in, and has to be rescued by the students."



HUFF AND POWDER PUFF

Mary Stroube, with the football, tries desperately to evade the clutches of Lynn Terwilliger in the powder-puff football match at Tamalpais High school yesterday. Mary represented the juniors, while Lynn was part of the senior squad. The seniors won the contest by one point. (Independent-Journal photo)

Novato Woman Hurt In Crash

A Novato woman suffered minor injuries when her station wagon hit the rear of another car on the northbound off-ramp from Highway 101 to San Jose Boulevard in Novato at 2:50 p.m. yesterday.

Betty B. Darden, 31, of 1057 Shafer Drive was driver of a car which struck that of Marrita A. Ronconi, 32, of 219 Mirada Avenue, Los Ranchitos, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said the Ronconi car had slowed behind a truck when it was hit.

Mrs. Darden, who said she would see her own doctor for treatment, was cited for going too fast.

Marin's Pop Warner Football Program

Little Guys Astound Their Fans

By DON KEOWN

The T-formation quarterback takes the snap from the center, fakes a hand-off to his fullback, drifts into the pocket set up by his blockers, and then floats a long pass nearly 50 yards downfield where an end, who has run his in-and-out pattern, makes a finger-tip catch.

The description of a John Brodie to Bernie Casey San Francisco 49er play that has occurred all too seldom this fall?

Or the University of California's brilliant Craig Morton hitting one of his teammates with a long, pinpoint aerial?

Nope, it's just one of Marin's young Pop Warner League football teams pulling off a touchdown play from its bag of gridiron tricks.

BOTH THE passer and receiver are barely in their teens. And both scale less than 125 pounds.

Yet these youngsters, precision-coached, elaborately equipped, often amazingly skilled, pull off plays, weekend after weekend during the fall months, that leave the adults on the sidelines gasping in astonishment.

Just what is Pop Warner football?

Attorney William C. Bricca, senior counsel for the California State Public Utilities Commission and president of the Marin Boys' Clubs, Inc., sponsors of the Pop Warner program, explains it this way:

POP WARNER FOOTBALL'S most successful Marin team, the Redwood Junior Giants, limber up prior to taking the field for a game. In the past six years under head coach John Pagliaro, the Giants have won four undisputed league titles and shared a co-championship, having tied with the San Rafael Junior Bulldogs this fall. An all-star game on the College of Marin gridiron at Kentfield tomorrow afternoon will climax the 1964 Pop Warner season. (Photos by Richard M. Smith)

"OUR PROGRAM offers well organized and carefully supervised football that meets a special need of quite a number of boys, 11 through 14, who feel they have outgrown Little League baseball and whose interest in Scouting might be lagging. They feel a need for physical exercise, for a contact sport, and for the great self-assurance that such activity can give to them."

With no junior high school football in Marin, Bricca feels that Pop Warner football has served to fill that need.

The program, he adds, offers additional benefits.

"THE BOYS who stick it out and make the team not only improve their skills in football (many of our 'graduates' have gone on to star in high school), but they also learn important lessons in discipline," he says. "This is one of the few places where discipline can be administered in substantial doses, and will be accepted, without undue resentment, by the boys."

Bricca points out that each boy is expected to keep his football shoes shined, his laces waxed, his hair cut, his jersey and pants spotless for each game. Tardiness or absence from practice sessions, without a reasonable excuse, is not tolerated. The maintenance of good grades in schoolwork is stressed.

The Marin Boys' Clubs was incorporated as a non-profit organization in the spring of 1954 "for the purpose of providing athletic support and direction for the youth of Marin County."

THE INITIAL interest of the corporation, however, was in the baseball field. The club conducted a four-team baseball program for boys in the 13 and 14-year-old age bracket. And in 1956, an all-star club selected from the rosters of those teams reached the finals of the Western Regional Pony League Playoffs in Riverside.

But as the Little League program expanded and flourished in the baseball field, Marin Boys' Clubs, Inc., began to turn its attention to football.

Even prior to its formation, Jack Benjamin of Mill Valley had sponsored a junior football team—the Marin Bulldogs. And Benjamin was a sparkplug in the organization of the Marin Boys' Clubs and its first president.

In 1956, the Marin Bulldogs became the Mill Valley Bulldogs, strictly a Southern Marin team, while Northern Marin boys were organized into the San Anselmo-Fairfax Hornets.

NORMAN WHITE of the Mill Valley Bulldogs was named to the Pop Warner All American team in 1957 and traveled to WEIGH-INS are a required pre-game ritual for Pop Warner football boys. At the start of the season, the weight ceiling is 123 pounds. And the boy's weight cannot exceed 125 pounds as the season progresses. Here Jack B. Crawford of Terra Linda, vice president of Marin Boys' Clubs Inc., sponsors of the Pop Warner program, checks the weight of Robbie Dorinson of the Redwood Junior Giants.

Daytona Beach, Fla., to accept his award.

In 1958, the Marin Boys' Clubs football program was expanded to include the Redwood Junior Giants of Larkspur-Corte Madera and the San Rafael Rangers.

The Junior Giants began a six-year domination of the program (during which they won or shared in five championships) in 1959 by going undefeated and accepted an invitation to play in the Papoose Bowl Game in Boise, Idaho. Again, in 1961, the Junior Giants traveled to Boise.

IN 1961 THE Terra Linda Junior Trojans and in 1962 the Novato Junior Hornets were added to the Marin Boys' Clubs fold, thus making a six-team total. The club then withdrew its teams from the Northern California Pop Warner League in which they had been competing to set up a separate Marin County league.

The Terra Linda Trojans journeyed to Phoenix for a post-season bowl game in 1962, after winning the league title.

Then last year, the Redwood Giants returned to the throne and were the host team against the East San Diego Golden Irish in a bowl game played at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

This season, Redwood and San Rafael battled to a tie for league honors. The 1964 campaign will be climaxed by the annual all-star game, pitting the best from the three Northern Marin teams against the finest from Southern Marin, on the College of Marin field starting at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

THE ALL-STAR game, and a pre-season football festival, are two of the Marin Boys' Clubs Inc., major fund-raising events.

Another is the annual Christmas tree sale, conducted from the Purity Stores lot in Mill Valley, begining early in December.

Sponsors also contribute to the program, and contributions are tax deductible.

League officials figure that it costs $112 to outfit each of the boys. This is exclusive of the shoes, athletic supporters and mouthpieces which the boys must supply.

APPROXIMATELY 400 boys bid for team berths in the early fall. But team rosters are limited to 40 players per squad. Other youngsters serve as team managers, and there are even cheerleaders.

Marin Boys' Clubs, Inc., officials are not unaware that the Pop Warner football program has been subjected to some criticism.

There are those who feel that the boys are needlessly exposed to the danger of injury in the rough contact sport at too tender an age.

BRICCA ANSWERS such critics in this way:

He points to the Marin junior football program's record of 10 years without a serious injury.

He stresses the precautions taken to prevent such injuries—complete protective padding and

THE UNIFORMS AND equipment issued to Pop Warner football players are complete in every respect. It costs $112 to outfit a boy, exclusive of shoes and mouthpiece which he must provide for himself. Redwood Junior Giants team manager Dave Shekell makes an equipment adjustment on player Rebel Minutoli during a practice session. Next year, Dave hopes to be a player.

Officials Give The Case For Their Program

other equipment, doctors present at all games, the careful screening of boys to see that the age and weight limits are not exceeded, the requirement that all the boys carry insurance, etc.

Bricca also notes that many Marin doctors have served as team physicians, and have permitted their sons to participate.

"IN ADDITION to all this," Bricca says, "it is well to keep in mind that it is virtually impossible to restrain a healthy boy from involvement in some kind of strenuous contact sport or activity. If he isn't doing it on a playing field under supervision, he is very likely to be doing it on a sandlot without supervision.

"And even if you could prevent a boy from engaging in rough play, there is good reason to consider, in view of his physical fitness, whether it would be a good idea."

Some also question whether these boys are sufficiently mature to handle the emotional ups and downs of victory and defeat.

BRICCA REPLIES that the strict discipline of the coaching staffs tends to prevent any incidence of "swollen heads" among the winners, and that league officials strive to take the stigma from defeat and stress participation.

OFFICIALS OF MARIN'S Pop Warner football feel that the guidance and discipline accorded the boys by the men who serve as coaches has a wholesome effect on the youngsters and is one of the major benefits derived from participation in the program. At left, San Rafael Junior Bulldog assistant coach Gene Pennington and player Dan Weiss "talk it over" on the sidelines. At right, Redwood Junior Giant coach John Pagliaro helps player Robbie Dorinson regain his breath after a long touchdown run. Looking on is Robbie's father, Dr. Malvern S. Dorinson, the Redwood team doctor.

"Generally, though, these kids are not our problem boys," Bricca says. "They are the more mature. They don't have to show off, because they have an outlet on the football field.

"Teachers tell us they can tell a Pop Warner boy because of his conduct. And they present fewer health problems. They aren't the ones who sneak behind the garage to smoke."

AND THEN there are those who contend that programs like Pop Warner football and Little League baseball tend to make the boys rely too heavily upon adults for guidance and curb their own initiative and creativity.

"Football," says Bricca, "is a complex game that is difficult to play without organization and supervision. It is a team sport, demanding coordination and cooperation. And yet, in the midst of play, the boy finds it necessary to exercise his own individuality time and time again—to make split-second decisions that no coach or other adult can make for him."

The maximum weight of a Pop Warner football player is 123 pounds at the start of the season, and cannot climb past 125 pounds as the season progresses.

ACCEPTABLE ages are 11 to 13, plus four boys per team who are 14, still in the eighth grade, and who played the previous fall.

The rules of play are basically the same as those applied to high school football games, with some adjustments such as 10-minute quarters.

Opening turnouts are held in mid-August. The festival involving all six teams is staged the first Saturday after Labor Day, and league play begins the last weekend in September, with "practice" games in between.

Games are played on Saturdays and Sundays, on the College of Marin, San Rafael High, Terra Linda High and Novato High fields as they are available.

THERE IS no clash in "recruiting" talent, for each of the six teams is restricted to the boundaries of the high school attendance area in which it is situated. Thus, the Tamalpais Junior Indians reside within the attendance area served by Tamalpais High School, the San Rafael Junior Bulldogs within the boundaries from which San Rafael High School draws its students, etc. All Pop Warner teams now carry the names of the high school of their area.

Coaching staffs are composed of men experienced in football. But that experience may range from Tamalpais Junior Indians head coach Larry Brink, a former pro star, to Redwood's highly successful John Pagliaro, who played only in high school.

Other head coaches include Len Genetin of Novato, Tony Barbera of Drake, Neele Johnston of San Rafael and Jim Finnegan of Terra Linda. All are backed by competent staffs of assistant coaches.

SERVING WITH Bricca as officers of Marin Boys' Clubs, Inc., are Jack B. Crawford of Terra Linda, a Bechtel Corp. executive, vice president; Jack L. Burnam of Novato, an attorney, secretary; Harvey M. Hand of Kent Woodlands, bank official, treasurer, and H. O. Swaney of San Anselmo, businessman, athletic chairman.

Making up the board of directors are two representatives of each of the six team units, plus the club president.

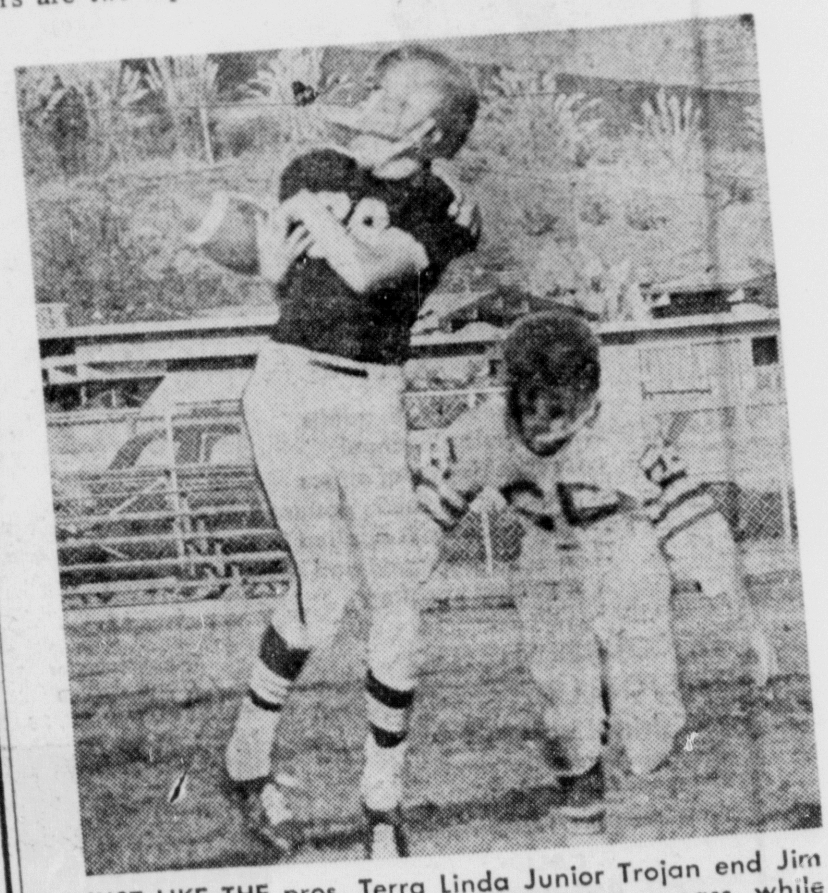
And each team has its own set of officers.

A PROGRAM of which these men are especially proud is the Pop Warner Scholarship Fund. The annual award is for $100, to be held in trust until the recipient enters college.

Each team, by vote of its players, is entitled to nominate two of its boys as candidates for the annual honor. The nominees then submit personal data sheets consisting of a thesis written by the candidates outlining their scholastic, civic and sports achievements and interests, and offering the recommendations of teachers and civic leaders.

A committee then makes the final selection. Kenny Johnson of San Rafael was the 1963 winner.

THE SCHOLARSHIP winners, Bricca says, are typical of "the fine brand of boys we have taking part in our program."



JUST LIKE THE pros, Terra Linda Junior Trojan end Jim Crawford goes high in an effort to snag a pass, while Cameron Wilson of the Drake Junior Pirates closes in for the tackle.

"NEVER STORE YOUR SOILED GARMENTS"
Make sure your summer cottons, synthetics, and blended clothing are clean before you store them for winter. Laboratory tests conducted at the National Institute of Drycleaning have proven that insects will cause considerable damage to any soiled fabric. Especially if fabrics are soiled with food stains.
A simple and practical rule to follow is never store soiled garments for any length of time.
By Robert and Ronald Casassa, Marin Cleaners, Inc.

THERE'S NO DEARTH of action when Marin's Pop Warner footballers take the field. Here Jim Page, halfback of the Tamalpais Junior Indians, is brought down from behind on a nifty tackle by George Adams of the Redwood Junior Giants. Robbie Dorinson moves in to give George a hand.

SAN RAFAEL Junior Bulldog tacklers finally bring Rebel Minutoli of the Redwood Junior Giants down after a sizable gain. Making the tackle is Dave Bariski. Dan Weiss and Mark Kenny are coming to his assistance.

IN A FLURRY OF ACTION, the Novato Junior Hornets bring Redwood Junior Giant back Robbie Dorinson to a halt. Players identifiable through their numbers include Novato's Burke Baugh (60), Jack Burnam (30), Carl Miner (22) and Jerry Lewis (50). Other Redwood players include Pete Carroll (40), Dore Schwab (60), Larry Pilcher (84) and Harold Pritchard (66).

THE NEW clubhouse of the Belvedere Tennis Club, part of an improvement program completed this spring, provides its members and their guests with a spectator gallery from which they can watch the action on the courts, frequently the scene of tournament play. The graceful latticed overhead adds to the appearance of the club, located where once there was nothing but a mud swamp. (Photos by Bill Steele)

INSIDE THE CLUBHOUSE of the Belvedere Tennis Club are spacious facilities for social affairs. At other times—the quiet times—it provides diversion for the children of club members who like to relax in the television room.

Playground For The Peninsula

The curving strip of shoreline where the Belvedere Tennis Club now stands has undergone a great many changes over the past dozen years.

Watching the bright-faced youngsters scurrying over the sunny courts as they take their weekend tennis lesson or a trim young couples sipping Cokes beside the handsome new clubhouse, one may find it difficult to recall that this three-acre tract was once a mud swamp where the district sewage line ended. But even then this untidy piece of acreage possessed a distinct asset.

BACK IN 1957 it was the last remaining piece of flat land available in a fast growing area made up mostly of hills and sloping banks.

At that time, a group of Belvedere residents were looking around for some land on which to build a privately-owned tennis club. There was little, if anything, to choose from. Developers had all but swallowed up the last bit of real estate. But the Belvedere group was keen on forming a club that would be devoted exclusively to the game of tennis.

Heading this determined squad were William R. Cuthbertson, Walter Machette, Dave Allen, John Wiley, Don Mattern and Bud Howard. Their selection finally narrowed down to that odd lot strip left over from a nearby subdivision known as Little Reed Park.

"WE HAD no choice," recalls Dave Allen, "so we picked this as our site."

Today the club's founders have found little reason to regret their choice. Newly-built homes dot the surrounding hillsides as the Tiburon Peninsula's population continues to boom. But the Belvedere Tennis Club lies protected in its low-lying

THE ACTION is always lively on the well-kept courts of the Belvedere Tennis Club, whether the competition be between visiting tournament players or between the members of the club. Two new courts were added to the club facilities by the improvement program completed this spring. field within a graceful shelter of native pampas grass. To the west a glittering view of Richardson's Bay delights the eye and across the inlet the tip of Strawberry Point comes into dramatic contact with sea and sky.

WITH SUCH a wealth of visual attractions, it is small wonder that the club's tournaments have attracted visiting players from tennis clubs throughout the country.

Within the neat confines of its graveled paths and tidy flower beds cared for through the years by Mrs. William Cuthbertson, club members will greet each other with the warm intimacy of old friends. A small club made up of 150 members, the Belvedere Tennis Club enjoys the kind of close knit camaraderie that many clubs twice its size would envy.

In a sense, it was this cozy comradeship among its membership that caused a temporary setback when it came time for the club to expand. With more and more children flocking to the courts under the club's increasingly successful Junior Program, club members soon began to feel the pinch of cramped dressing rooms and an under-sized hall.

AN ACTIVE tennis committee headed by a group of young dynamic workers such as John and Celine Costello, Chuck Auerbach, Connie Wiley, Jack Himmelwright and Al Seidel were soon clamoring for more courts, more activities, a bigger and better clubhouse.

"We might even put in a swimming pool . . .", someone was heard to suggest innocently.

"It was about that time we discovered we have plenty of rugged individualists in our group," says one club member. "The swimming pool idea caused a surprising amount of controversy among the members. Some were horrified at the possibility that we might become too big, too impersonal."

BUT PRESIDENT Walter Machette strongly felt the need for major improvements and boosted the program wholeheartedly.

For months the swimming pool issue raged on. Opinions were sharply divided between inevitable progress and the desire that this friendly little club should remain unchanged. Finally the matter was put to a vote among the membership. The vote was to "go ahead" by an overwhelming majority.

The reconstruction committee proceeded enthusiastically with plans to construct a two-story clubhouse, enlisting the aid of architect and longtime club member Chester Bowles. A swimming pool was to be included in the plans as well as a backboard, two additional playing courts and enlarged dressing rooms.

The $75,000 job was completed this spring. The new clubhouse with its spectator gallery and graceful latticed overhead has added much to the appearance of the club as has the sparkling new swimming pool adjoining the dressing area.

FOLLOWING UP in its program of rejuvenation, the club this year hired Paul Wilkins of the Gardiner Tennis Ranch in Carmel as the club professional and first full-time manager.

Wilkins, a forward-looking young tennis pro who was ranked for five years among the top 10 players of Texas, is also a former national collegiate doubles champion and has crossed swords on the tournament circuit with many of the country's leading tennis players. Under his managership, the club has received additional impetus and has become a smooth-running organization.

GROUP CLASSES at the Belvedere Tennis Club are open to all children on the Tiburon Peninsula. Here Sandy Stevens takes her turn hitting a tethered ball under the watchful eyes of club pro Paul Wilkins. Marks on the cement help teach beginners proper footwork.

So club member Bert Talbot of Talbot of Tiburon Travel Service has planned a group tennis tour of Hawaii for January, open to all Marin tennis players. Here at left, he discusses his unusual project with Rita Fink and club pro Paul Wilkins, who will conduct a tennis clinic at the Waikiki Racquet Club.

One point on which all club members are generally agreed is that this has been the Belvedere Tennis Club's most successful season to date.

THE JUNIOR Program in particular, spearheaded by Chuck Auerbach, one of the club's most active workers, hit its peak of popularity during the past season, bringing some 345 youngsters into competition, many of them from out of state.

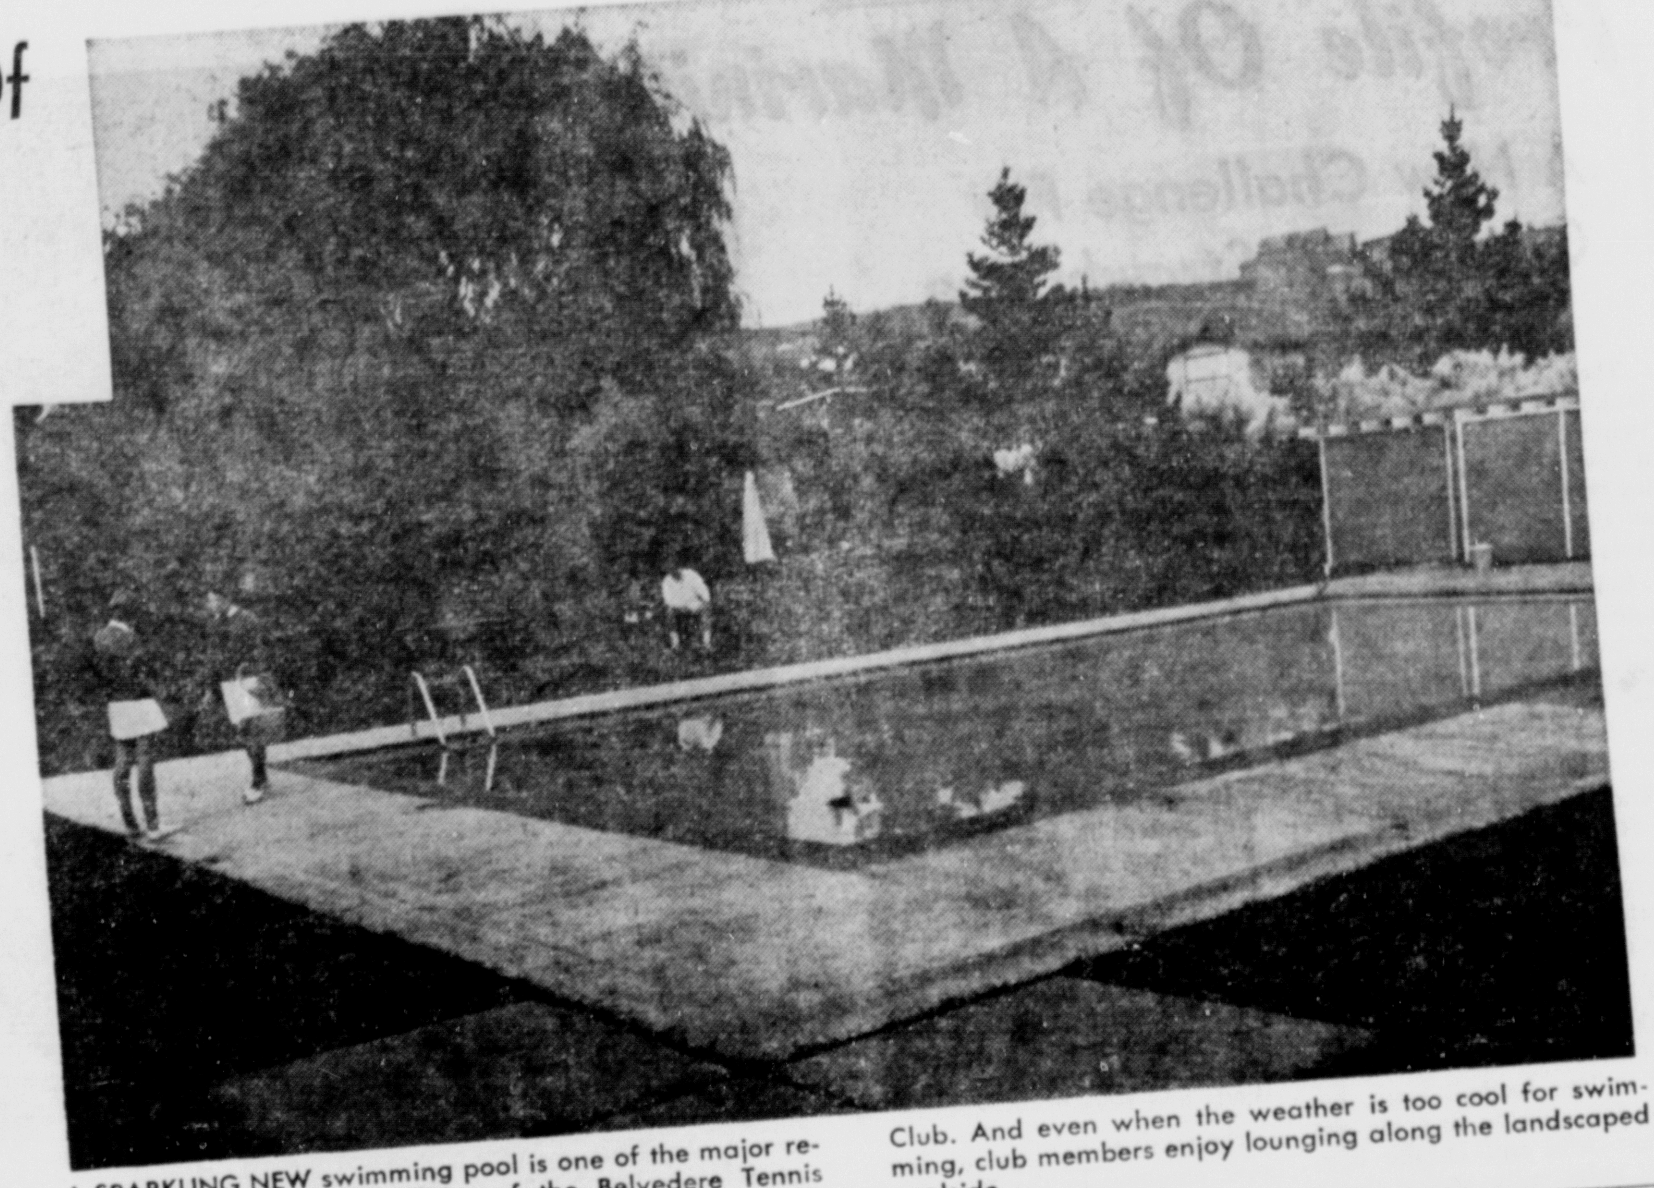
All in all, it was a season that was just too good to end. But apparently someone has come up with a solution to that problem as well.

Club member Bert Talbot, who owns the Talbot of Tiburon Travel Service, is at present completing plans for a group tennis tour to Hawaii that will stretch out the tennis season far beyond its normal span. The proposed tour, open to all Marin County tennis enthusiasts, is scheduled for January 15-25, has the enthusiastic support of the club and of its avid tennis players who usually get rained out by late November.

THE CLUB'S pro, Paul Wilkins, will accompany the group to Hawaii and will conduct a daily tennis clinic at the Waikiki Racquet Club.

Several other clubs will also be well represented on the tour.

To those Belvedere Tennis Club members who today enjoy the club's faciilties, there is very little left to remind them of the deserted grassfields of yesterday and of that leftover strip of acreage that once was nothing more than sewage, starfish, shells, and mud. The only remaining memento of those early days are the railroad tracks running parallel to the shore where once the Northwestern Pacific locomotives hauled trains with their cargo of lumber between San Rafael and the Tiburon Ferry Landing. But even this last link with the past will eventually disappear and in a few years time, a super highway will span the marshy bank that stretches along the water's edge.



A SPARKLING NEW swimming pool is one of the major recent additions to the facilities of the Belvedere Tennis Club. And even when the weather is too cool for swimming, club members enjoy lounging along the landscaped poolside.

Profile Of A Marinite

A New Challenge For Gordon W. Strawbridge

By ELLEN BRY

There's a new party game making the rounds. Each participant writes on a slip of paper a few little known facts from his personal history; then others at the party try to fit those facts to the proper person.

Gordon W. Strawbridge might note that he climbed mountains as a youth, played center on a football team, is a liberal Democrat from a Republican family and has been elected mayor of two different cities.

The last is a dead giveaway, as Strawbridge is widely known throughout Marin as the former mayor of Mill Valley and recently-named mayor of the new city of Tiburon.

IT IS LESS likely that he would be identified as once having been a lineman on a Haverford College football team, because Strawbridge, dripping wet from a wild sail on the bay, might balance the scales at 150 pounds—if he had on his football uniform.

"We didn't win too many games — they de-emphasized football to the nth degree. It was a strictly intellectual place."

Strawbridge was born Nov. 4, 1900, of a Republican "Quaker" family in Germantown, Pa., a suburb of Phildelphia, which then had "shady, tree-lined streets . . . It's built up now."

HE WAS graduated from the Germantown Friends School and Haverford College, both Quaker institutions, and spent a year at Harvard Business School.

"I ended up with a rather sound liberal education and a lasting fondness for good books and good music."

His father was "interested" in education and on the boards of directors of Haverford and Bryn Mawr colleges. The family has for years had a controlling interest in a department store in Phildelphia.

"MY FATHER was an avid sailor and I sailed the waters of Narragansett Bay off Rhode Island as a small boy."

Today he sails San Francisco Bay waters in his 33-foot auxiliary sloop the Turtle, berthing her at the San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere, where Strawbridge has been the commodore.

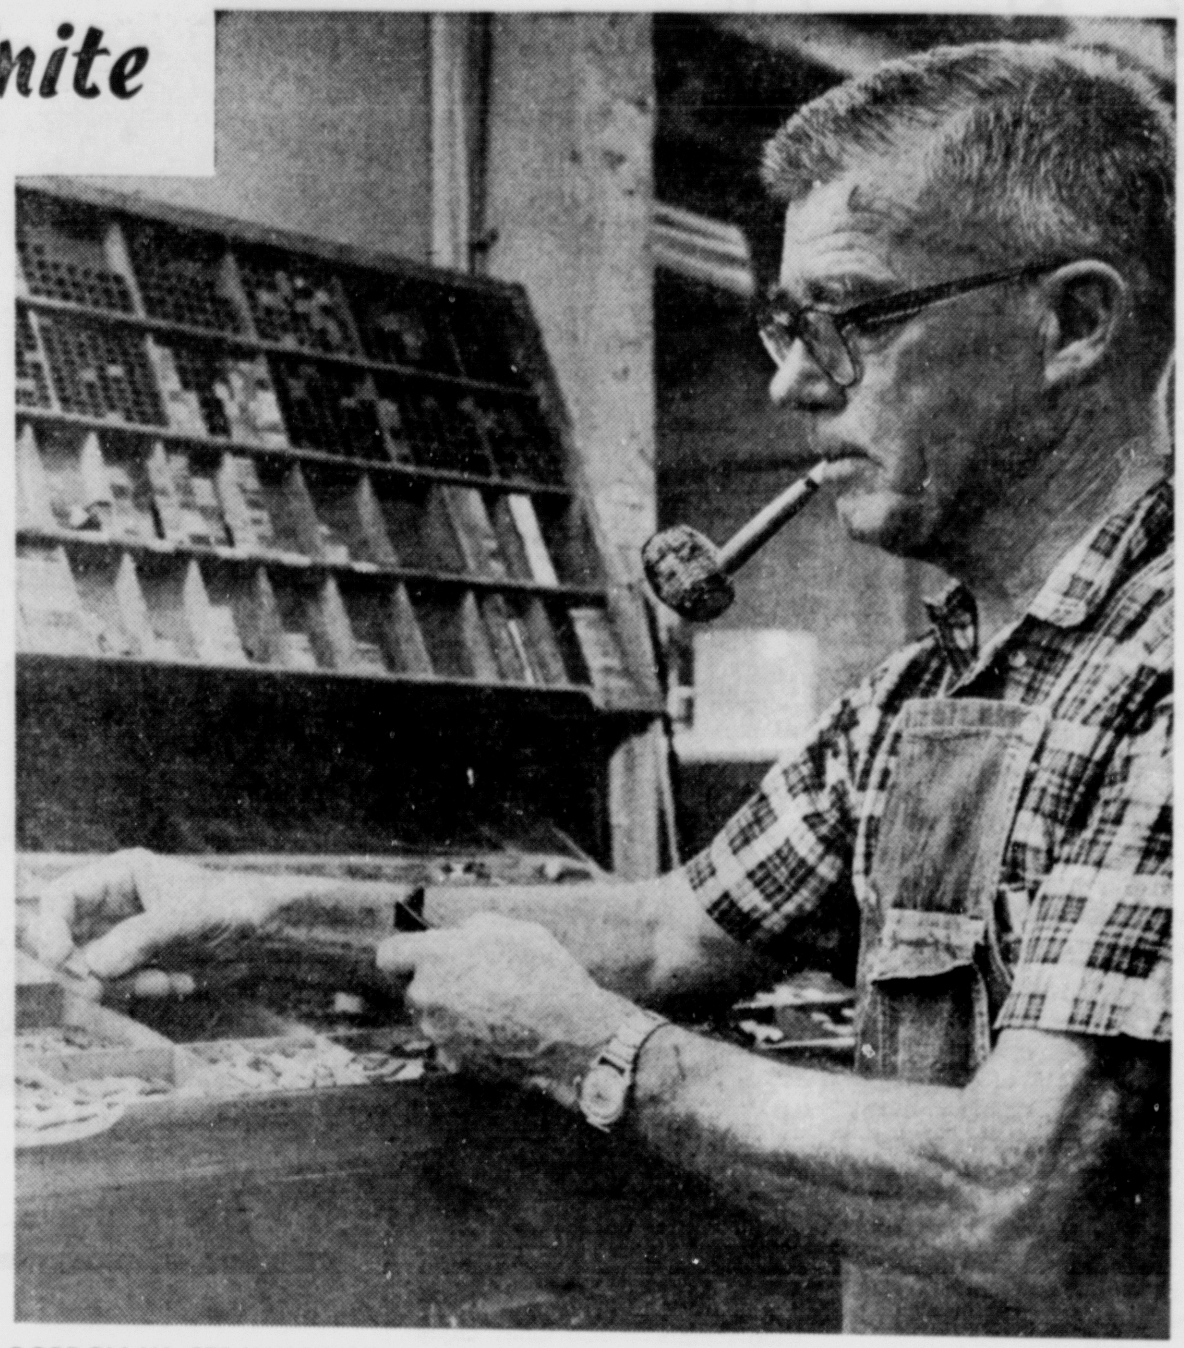
Strawbridge thinks bay sailing is "much tougher" than East Coast sailing—"much more rugged owing to the strong winds and tides."

STRAWBRIDGE as a boy went climbing in the Bavarian and Swiss Alps with family friends and followed it up in college days with climbing in the American and Canadian Rockies.

"I spent summers camping in Maine, where I developed a life-long love of nature and the conservation of our wildlife and natural resources.

"As a conservationist, it hurts me to see redwoods cut down, bay waters filled, wild game trapped and shot." Strawbridge is treasurer of the Marin Audubon Society.

STRAWBRIDGE left Harvard to work for a book-publishing firm in Philadelphia. In 1929 he moved to Los Angeles, then later Palo Alto, looking for a better climate for his wife's health.



GORDON W. STRAWBRIDGE practices the trade of printer at Graphic Arts of Marin in Sausalito's Marinship. Extremely active in civic, political and conservation affairs, the busy Marinite, once mayor of Mill Valley, is now mayor of the county's youngest incorporated city—Tiburon.
(Independent-Journal photo)

The depression had little financial but a profound political effect on him.

"It changed me to a Democrat in 1932, although all the rest of my family remain staunch Republicans. My sole defection was voting for Willkie in 1944.

"ALTHOUGH deeply involved in the capitalist system, I feel that resources are now so limited that private property rights must make some concession to the public good."

Pearl Harbor came. Strawbridge tried to enlist in the Navy and was turned down after the examination of his eyes and ears.

His eyes still are good enough to spot a small overflowing ash tray all the way across the room after a city council meeting. He has the self-appointed chore of emptying all ash trays before leaving.

HIS EARS are just sharp enough to make other councilmen stop mumbling and speak up loudly so Strawbridge and the audience can hear.

Strawbridge was not to be kept out of the war.

"I decided that Hitler had to be stopped."

He took a three-day Coast Guard examination which brought him a commission as a lieutenant jg.

HE WAS assigned to a shore post, applied for sea duty and was ordered aboard the cutter Shawnee, patroling the California coast on anti-submarine duty. He later became commanding officer of the ship.

In 1943 his wife, Elizabeth, died. He married Nancy Meyer of Mill Valley; they were divorced in 1960. He now is married to the former Elizabeth Alma Fisher.

Strawbridge opened a stationary store under his name in Mill Valley, where he moved after the war. He sold it in 1954, later started the Marin Printer first in Mill Valley, then in Sausalito. The firm has become associated with Graphic Arts of Marin Inc. in the Marinship, Sausalito, where Strawbridge does the camera work and photographic plate-making required in printing.

WHILE RESIDING in Mill Valley he ran for the city council in 1950 and lost, but was later appointed to fill a council vacancy. He ran and won in 1952, then two years later was appointed mayor by his fellow councilmen. He did not "choose to run" in 1956.

He is proud that under him the "first comprehensive master plan" was adopted for Mill Valley.

Fellow councilmen remember that he used to work repairing some of the broken-down pedestrian paths of the city, considering it the duty of a resident and councilman.

HE WAS elected to the committee of freeholders in 1957 that drew up a county charter which was rejected by the voters.

Today he says he would not favor drafting another charter unless wide public support could be shown for it.

"The state legislature has become so permissive that lots of things can be accomplished by the counties now that couldn't be done then."

Strawbridge moved to Belvedere in 1959, later to Tiburon.

"ALTHOUGH quite new to the community of Tiburon, and although I had considered myself retired from active politics, when incorporation was proposed, I was urged to run for city council on the basis of past experience.

"I couldn't resist the challenge of helping to give the new city the best possible start — so here I am as mayor and I do believe my experience has been helpful."

Strawbridge through the years also has been helpful to the United Crusade, a member of local service clubs and of the American Civil Liberties Union. For eight years he was on the board of the Northern California branch of the American Friends Service Committee.

A Holiday Of Colors

Add Floral Beauty To The Table

Of all our holidays, Thanksgiving Day is truly America's most festive "day of flowers."

Even the bowls of fruit sprout flowers this year.

There is very little difficulty, anymore, in getting the flowers you want in November. Choose any species, spin the color wheel, and more than likely you find abundance of varieties.

ONCE UPON a time, 343 years ago on the last Thursday of November, this was not so. On that day, the Mayflower Pilgrims cooked and baked, and spread their tables with food and fowl to give thanks for their first harvest in America.

There were no flowers for their tables. There had been no time to grow them.

These somber, practical folk used, instead, the produce of their efforts to survive—yellow squash, dull purple Indian corn, green melons and grapes—added russet autumn leaves to fill their "horns of plenty."

SO, FOR hundreds of years, Americans traditionally stuck to the Pilgrims' limited choice of colors with which to decorate their homes on Thanksgiving Day. Only recently have we recognized that the spirit of giving thanks can be interpreted by the glad, gay color spectrum of flowers.

Why not use lavender, purple, tangerine, rose, red, blue or any of the muted pastels? Why not, indeed!

For example: Lavender Sterling Silver roses, purple chrysanthemums, tangerine roses or carnations, red Garnet roses, blue Dutch irises, pastel green or silvery orchid Spider chrysanthemums—on and on.

FOR A magnificent table setting, select the predominant flower color of your arrangement and repeat the same shade in your tablecloth. It does marvels for your silver, glass and chinaware, especially in the glow of candlelight.

For seating family and guests, use two or three small blossoms with a place card attached to their stems by a ribbon, and put before each place setting. To climax the whole, the hostess wears a corsage of the same key color of the centerpiece. Perfect!

Now, to select:

FLOWER growers have developed unbelievable combinations of colors and species—almost anything under the sun you need to fit your decor. Some of the new break-throughs are gladiolas in a wide range of colors, once limited to the summer months, now available all year round. There are miniature carnations, a new elegant variety, each stem bearing several buds and flowers instead of the familiar, stiff one-blossom-to-a-stem type. These minatures come in a wild color selection of fuchsia, yellow, tangerine and a purple and lavender combination.

Another newcomer for this time of year is the blue Dutch Iris. It used to have a short spring life, but is now coming in bloom in October and continuing throughout the winter.

These are only a hint of your choices, hitherto impossible in the fall season.

ALWAYS available are your mixtures for texture and effect—bells of Ireland, pussy willow, cat-tails, wheat, yarrow, dry wild artichoke blossoms, all sorts of weeds, as well as fruits and vegetables. Actually, flower colors don't fight, so you shouldn't be afraid to mix them.

However, if you have any doubts, remember that "green is the peacemaker." For color transition, use the glossy green of leather leaf fern, the silver green of spiral eucalyptus or, of course, green grapes.

Depend on your florist for any help you need in floral arrangements for your home. He has charts for your inspection, and is glad to advise and inform you as a public service.

SOME OF the country's leading floral designers are in Marin County, so take advantage of your good fortune. It is more than likely that you will, since the people of Marin are known to be more flower conscious than people anywhere else in the Bay Area.

Your florist stands ready, too, if you are short on ideas or time. Take your favorite vase or container to him, and let EXCELLENT FOR BUFFET or entrance hall is this massed triangular arrangement in a low oval ceramic bowl as designed by Burns Florist of San Rafael. Bronze disbud chrysanthemums have been softened with golden celosia. Weight and interest have been created at the base through the use of cockscomb and green grapes.

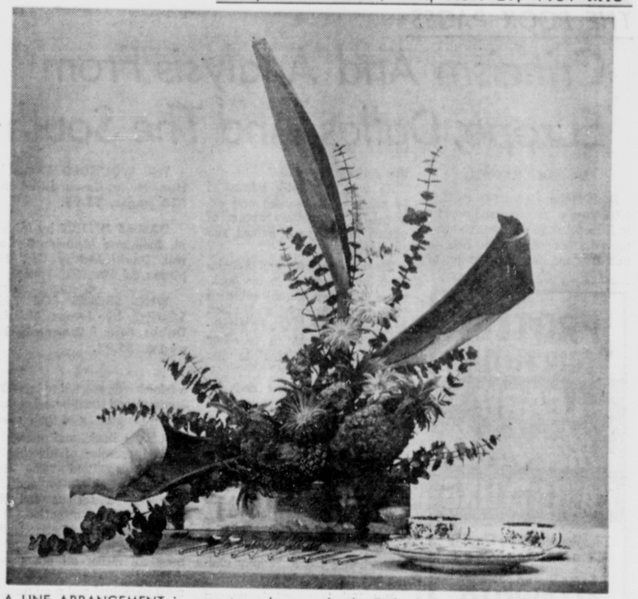
A TALL ARRANGEMENT rises from a pedestaled milk glass bowl. The spikes of cattails, the yellow spider chrysanthemums, the gold and orange chrysanthemums, and the green grapes all bring the fall colors into the home for the Thanksgiving holiday. The arrangement is suitable for buffets, piano or the hi-fi set. Burns Florist of San Rafael created the arrangement for the state convention of florists.



A LINE ARRANGEMENT in a rectangular copper container uses dried palm spathes to accept the curve. Dried eucalyptus foliage in brown tones soften the severe line. Varied sizes of pineapple give weight and depth. Disbud chrysanthemums serve as the focal point and color accent. The Eubanks' Florist arrangement is especially suited to the buffet table. Arrangements For The Thanksgiving Table him create for you an arrangement that harmonizes with your home decor and table setting.

Flowers are a must to achieve the atmosphere of hospitality, of warmth and of grace for the Thanksgiving day-at-home with your family and friends. In this atmosphere, everyone is relaxed and happy. Children, particularly, appreciate and respond to beautiful surroundings.

OF COURSE, for the inner man, that wonderful, mouth-watering meal is the event of the day. But Mr. Turk or his modern gourmet competitor, the suckling pig or stuffed capon, is consumed in perhaps an hour. Not the flowers. They reflect the thanksgiving spirit all day and for days to come.

Planning floral decorations for November should be especially novel and intriguing to new arrivals in Marin from across the nation. The abundance of gardens, thriving in this climate and soil, explains why 22 per cent of the total commercial production of flowers in America comes from California. At the San Francisco International Airport, for instance, 57 per cent of all departing air freight is flowers.

And that's not all; 42 per cent of all flowers exported out of the United States are produced in California.

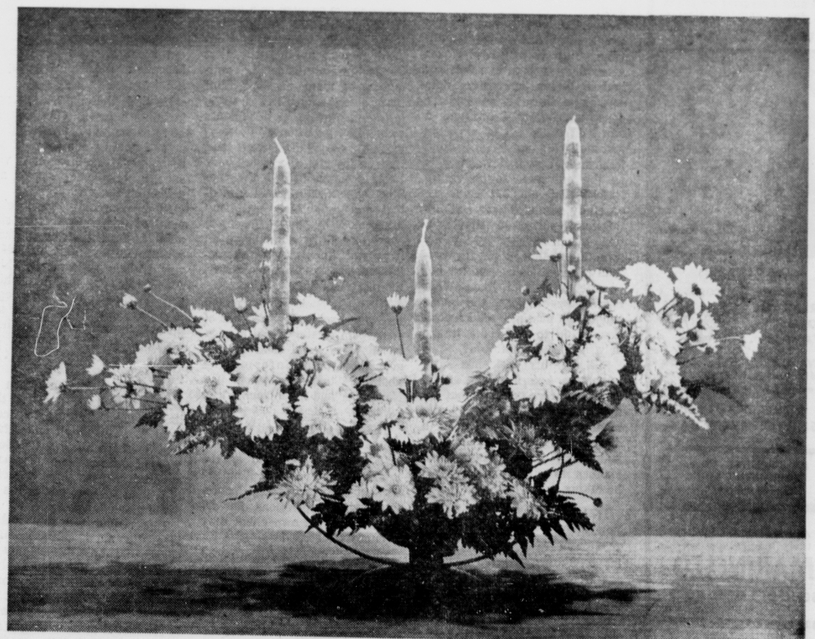
IN THIS land of flowers, it is no wonder then that even at the end of November we can let our imaginations run riot for holiday decorations.

To quote Marin floral designer Katherine Eubanks, "Thanksgiving Day falls at a time when the most interesting of all flower arrangements can be made, because the occasion offers greater versatility than any other holiday. There is no need to limit your choice of colors. Nature supplies a fantastic range, and they all suggest thanksgiving. Accessories have no limit, either—feathers, candles in matching colors, Pilgrim or other figurines, fruits and vegetables. Nature's bounty is infinite, and that's what Thanksgiving Day is about."

NOW GET your start toward a beautiful house and banquet table this coming Thursday by examining the floral creations shown on these pages.

They were created by these Marin members of the San Francisco Bay Area Retail Florists Assn. for the 1964 California State Florists Assn. convention.

FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FLOWERS are combined by Eubanks' Florist of Larkspur in a low glass bowl as an arrangement for the informal table. Red cabbage has been split in several places and submerged in deep water until it has opened into a rosette. The cabbage is the focal point, surrounded by egg plant, plums and grapes in complimentary colors. The whole is outlined by pink-edged ti leaves and surrounded with an accent of green-centered lavender chrysanthemms. (Photos by Vano-Wells-Fagliano)



A DINING TABLE arrangement by Burns Florist incorporates candles with the flowers. The continuous large curve of the arrangement flows from a three-section black wrought iron container. Bright gold pompom chrysanthemums rise from glossy green leather leaf fern. Both are lasting materials. Criticism And Analysis From Europe, Dallas And The South

By DON KEOWN

Hans Habe, German-born U.S. citizen who resides and writes in Europe, made a cross-country tour of this country in 1963 to examine and assess the status of the American "soul."

He was especially interested in areas of fanaticism and extremism, in our corruption of values and in race hatred and extremism.

His observations and conclusions are recorded in his book, "The Wounded Land" subtitled "Journey Through a Divided America," that is being published this month in 10 other countries in addition to the United States.

So what Habe saw and decided is certain to have a profound impact upon world opinion of this country.

And what Habe has reported is not pleasant. He concentrated upon the South and Texas, where he found racism and extremism running rampant, and upon California—the "Mild West," he calls it—where he sensed the best chance for a "happy ending" to the American story.

But Habe's report is uneven and far from unflawed. Despite his American citizenship, his outlook and background are that of the foreigner. No insurmountable obstacle, that. But Habe is insufficiently prepared for the task he has undertaken.

His observations are keen enough, though limited by time, his route of travel and space. And his conclusions range from brilliant insight to ludicrous misinterpretation. Frequently, Habe is the victim of his own fixed opinions. And he writes with a blind idolatry for John F. Kennedy, a great and good man to be sure, that ignores the more human characterizations and objectives of the late President.

America, unquestionably, has grave problems with fanaticism. But calmer Americans generally see them more clearly and in better perspective than does Habe. Our own writers have done an equally frank and a more effective job of exposing and analyzing our social ills and foibles. And such developments as the outcome of the recent Presidential election and the carefully compiled Warren Commission Report on the assassination of President Kennedy sometimes—though not always—tend to leave Habe very far out on the proverbial limb. What for instance, does the overwhelming passage of Proposition 14 do to the Habe image of a tolerant California?

Still, if this book has little import to Americans as an instrument for pointing out to them their own defects, it has a measure of importance as a demonstration of the unhappy and hasty impressions which visitors to our country might be taking home with them.

IT MAY amuse some and annoy others when colorful San Francisco attorney Mel Belli complains that his opponents in a trial have resorted to headline-hunting and trial-by-newspaper in the conducting of their case.

But the basic and more important premise of his "Dallas Justice" subtitled "The Real Story of Jack Ruby and His Trial" is a serious one that commands our attention. It is that justice in these United States, superior as it is to almost all if not all other legal systems, can nevertheless be most parochial and most uneven.

Belli contends that the killer of the suspected assassin of President John F. Kennedy was denied a fair trial because of the ugly climate of public opinion in Dallas, and because of the peculiar machinations of the political and legal "establishment" of that city.

He also uses the book to aim a few brickbats at American Bar Association officials with whom he has long feuded, criticizing them sharply for alleged neglect of the cause of defendants in the more unpopular criminal cases.

It is unfortunate that Belli did not develop his broader theses still further, with greater application to the country as a whole. He convinces the reader that Ruby and his attorneys did, indeed, face an uphill battle, that Texas jurisprudence is antiquated in many respects, that those safeguards which the system does provide for defendants were often given only "lip-service" by the Dallas court and that, in the end, the jurors very likely ignored instead of evaluated the rather impressive medical and psychiatric testimony assembled by the defense to show that Ruby acted from an irrational impulse—"psychomotor epilepsy" — when he pulled the trigger of his gun.

The Belli book is also an interesting background account of courtroom strategy, and a revelation of a great deal of not-generally-known information about the tragic events of last November and the incidents that followed.

The ego of Belli and his own bland unqualified "conviction" of Lee Harvey Oswald as the murderer of President Kennedy without the same legal procedures and protections he demanded for his own client may alienate some readers.

But the basic questions posed by Belli are moral issues that demand a resolution. In a country in which burners and bombers of churches and homes go free on probation while demonstrators for and practitioners of constitutionally-guaranteed civil rights go to jails and prisons, it behooves us all to wonder if the "best" court system is yet good enough. And if the Ruby trial is not but one part of a pattern in which justice is too often thwarted or twisted to fit the local whim or prejudice.

THE WOUNDED LAND by Hans Habe, Coward-McCann, 310 pages, $5.95.

DALLAS JUSTICE by Melvin M. Belli and Maurice C. Carroll, David McKay Co., 298 pages, $5.50.

WHO SPEAKS FOR THE SOUTH? by James McBride Dabbs, Funk & Wagnalls, 398 pages, $5.95.

A JOURNALIST and novelist living in Europe, Hans Habe has recorded his cross-country observations of the United States in his book "The Wounded Land." It is being published in 11 countries.

A VOICE of decency and reason in the midst of the frenetic racist clamor of the Deep South has been that of James McBride Dabbs, South Carolinan, past president and executive committee member of the Southern Regional Council dedicated to the principle of equal opportunity for "all peoples" of the section.

In his newest book, "Who Speaks for the South?" Dabbs probes beneath the surface to uncover and examine the historical roots of what has come to be called "the Southern way of life."

He finds that the South's past includes a bewildering mixture of romance and religion, chivalry and crudity, contentment and resentment, culture and violence, a clinging to the past and a longing for a future.

After examining the development of this contradictory situation, he finds that the Southern white man now finds himself at war with a reflection of himself—as he likes to think of himself. For now it is the Negro who has come to represent and uphold the best of Southern heritage — the religious, the gentle, the creative and the dignified.

If the South can learn to accept this basic paradox that has developed, Dabbs feels, then ". . . we shall understand that Southern history was God's way of leading two originally opposed peoples into a richer life than either could have found alone."

This reader felt that Dabbs, idealistic and compassionate, searched almost desperately for those factors that could place Southern prejudice in its most acceptable, or at least most understandable, light. This search is conducted at such length and in such detail that the reader's interest tends to lag. And at times, it seems that Dabbs is hunting complex and hidden causes as substitutes for more apparent and more likely, but uglier, causes.

And finally, one wishes that he could share the Dabbs optimism that a new respect is developing between white and black man in the South. Very probably it is in limited localities. But in many other places, in the hardcore southern states, it has not yet begun to make itself felt. And its appearance may be many decades in the offing.

The strong racist vote in the Deep South in the past election and the continuation of sporadic violence would seem to indicate, at least, that this "new respect" is yet a distant reality.

A REVISED and enlarged edition of the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service guide, "A Career Conference For Your Community," is now available for $2 from the service's national office at 1640 Rhode Island Avenue, N.W., Washington D.C., 20036. It offers details on planning and conducting a career conference such as the ones B'nai B'rith now stages in hundreds of U.S. and Canadian cities.

DOUBLE DEFECTOR by Patrick Wayland, Crime Club, 188 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Counterstroke, the top-secret privately-financed counter-espionage organization, goes into operation again against the Communist apparatus.

This time, Counterstroke is faced with a defector in its own ranks. And agent Lloyd Nicolson's assignment to intercept and prevent the defection takes him to Montreal.

It's a satisfactory entry in the currently very popular spy thriller field, fast-moving, exciting and generally realistic.

Dying Legend

CALIFORNIA CONDOR, VANISHING AMERICAN by Dick Smith and Robert Easton, McNally and Loftin, 104 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The condor of the Americas is a lineal descendant of the legendary roc and phoenix of antiquity. He has been a religious symbol of the American Indians, a figure of legend among both red men and white.

Once the bird we call the California condor ranged widely over the southern half of North America, performing a function that is still performed by his almost-equally-huge cousin, the giant vulture of India: The role of nature's scavenger. Now, even in the West, this role has descended mostly upon his small cousin, the turkey buzzard, as the condor has become a rarity—although holding his own after having been thought extinct three decades ago.

The story of the condor, and the case for his preservation, are presented with brevity and spirit by Dick Smith and Robert Easton in "California Condor, Vanishing American." Brooks Atkinson has written a plea for protection of the bird as an introduction.

Gold Rush Life

WILLIAM PERKINS' JOURNAL OF LIFE AT SONORA, 1849-1852, by William Perkins, with introduction and annotations by Dale L. Morgan and James R. Scobie, University of California Press, 405 pages, $8.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

William Perkins was a Canadian who headed for California, via Panama, with an Ohio company in 1849.

He reached San Francisco in June, and headed shortly afterward for the southern mines, where he settled at the "Camp of the Sonoraneses," which became Sonora.

For the next three years, Perkins wrote with some regularity in a journal that is rich with the wild fascination of a gold rush town. He prospected but briefly himself. Having some means, he went into a mercantile partnership, and rose rapidly to a position of leadership in the community.

After his three years in Sonora, Perkins went to Argentina. There, he wrote some reminiscences of his California stay which he incorporated with entries from his journal to make a book. A Spanish version was published in Buenos Aires in 1937; now University of California has for the first time published Perkins' original.

Introductory material and copious notes have been added by Dale L. Morgan, Bancroft Library researcher, and James R. Scobie, associate professor of history at Indiana University. The result is one of the most readable — and undoubtedly one of the most authentic — chronicles of life in a California gold rush camp ever put between covers.

One Less Fan

COMPACT GOLF by Doug Sanders, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 176 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Paul Miller.

To improve his game, a weekend golfer should shorten his backswing and widen his stance; if a reader remembers these two suggestions by professional golfer Doug Sanders, he will have assimilated all of the fresh contributions of "Compact Golf."

And unfortunately, the self-promotion and disorganization that a reader must hack his way through to realize these suggestions costs him $5.95 plus tax.

The book is larded with intimate full page photographs of Sanders, who in most of the pictures is doing everything but playing golf. The captions are hardly an improvement (". . . Doug's crowd-pleasing form . . . the gallery roared with delight . . . Doug died a little . . . Doug wowed the gallery . . .").

The text shifts constantly in the use of the pronouns "I", "you", "he", and "they", until the reader is dizzy. And these pronouns are the excessive seasoning of a hash of autobiographical recollection, game commentary and casual instruction—sometimes all in a single sentence.

An example of some of the book's seeming contradictions in chapter nine:

Says Sanders: "The strongest part of my game since high-school (sic) days has been accuracy. That means always keeping the ball in play—normally never hitting it away (sic) out of the fairway or as a rule never missing many greens in the par number of strokes. In fact, if I could chip and putt a little better, I might be winning a lot more money."

But on the very next page Sanders recalls his play on the final hole of the 1961 U.S. Open: He knocked his tee shot off the fairway and behind some trees and was unable to put his second shot on the green. Yet he almost sank his chip shot to tie for a play-off.

I used to be a Doug Sanders fan.

Big City Guide

HART'S GUIDE TO NEW YORK CITY, by Harold H. Hart, Hart Publishing Co., 1331 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Here comes another comprehensive key to the big town, this one alphabetized for speedy service.

Not only are restaurants, hotels and motels, theaters, sports, art galleries, cocktail lounges, tours and transportation detailed, but an evaluation is given for each—made after what the publisher states was independent investigation by one of 15 persons reporting over a period of three years.

You can even be led to a place that offers indoor parachute lessons . . . if you feel you want that.

A section of 33 full color maps shows Manhattan neighborhoods in some detail, as well as the other boroughs of the city, the subway systems with time distances between stations given, and the scheme of house numbers for the Manhattan blocks.

It's attractively printed, quite lively as guide books go, and seemingly up to date for a city where buildings rise and fall with rapidity and restaurants play musical chairs through the Midtown sections.

Mysterious History

MOST SECRET by John Dickson Carr, Harper and Row, 235 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Carr's tale of 17th century England is an adept combination of a mystery, historical novel and adventure yarn.

Since the characters speak in the 17th century style, the historical tone prevails, but the action brings mystery and adventure.

When the hero, Roderick Kinsmere, strolls into the court of King Charles II, he walks into the center of "palace intrigue," and the plot is as intricate as any modern spy story.

The pace is fast, the characters are interesting and chances are the reader will not be able to guess the solution to the mystery until Carr gives it to him.

HOWARD CLEWES, whose new novel, "The Libertines," a story of Brazil's cattle country, has just been published by Doubleday and Co., now makes his home in London. He has lived in several South American countries.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By. C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

If you are planning to add a stereo music system to your home during this coming holiday season, this article may help you as a buying guide. Stereo systems are available in all price ranges, but to obtain good sound you should not purchase a system for less than $299.00 if it is to include FM stereo and phono. When purchasing a unit in this price category, you will have to be extremely cautious to insure that you are selecting a console with good electronics.

For the family who has a budget of from $299 to $500 and wants the AM and FM Stereo, and Stereo Phono all in one beautiful furniture piece, we strongly recommend the selection of an Electrohome Console. Why? Because it is the closest music system to a custom made component stereo system. The Electrohome consoles include Garrard changers, Jensen speakers, excellent diamond needle cartridges, beautiful furniture, and most models feature transistorized electronics. Bring your family to our music salon and let us demonstrate these fabulous consoles.

For the family who has alloted a budget of $350 to $650 and wants component units, but does not wish to invest in furniture at this time, we urge the selection of a Fisher, or a Scott, or a Sherwood tuner-amplifier combination, a Garrard changer with a Shure stereo cartridge, and two speaker systems of your choice. A system of this type will give you superb sound, since all of your investment is being used for the electronics and none for furniture except for the speaker cabinets.

For the family who has from $500 to $800 to invest in the stereo music system, and wants components in custom type furniture, we recommend the above type components mounted in a custom cabinet of your choice, completely made up as a beautiful console by our experienced staff.

For the family who has from $800 to $2000 for a stereo investment, we recommend a custom system using McIntosh components, Garrard or Thorens for a record player, Altec speakers, and a custom cabinet to fit your room decor. A tape recorder for recording and for playing stereo tapes can be added to any of the systems mentioned.

Whatever your budget may be, proper selection can give the entire family years and years of the finest enjoyment man has yet devised. Visit us now and let us help you start planning your holiday system.

HANDEL: Dettingen Te Deum — Putz/Altmeyer/Lisken/Crass/South German Madrigal Choir/SW German Chamber Orchestra/Wolfgang Gonnenwein conducting—Angel Stereo S36194:

A few months ago there were no performances of this major Handel work in the catalog, and now there are two, the other being on the Nonesuch label. This Te Deum celebrated a victory in the War of the Austrian Succession and is full of trumpets, tympani and glorious music. The work was originally written in English by Handel, but since these are all German performers, the work is sung in German. Thanks a heap . . .

DIZZY GOES HOLLYWOOD—Dizzy Gillespie Quintet—Philips PHS 600-123:

Jazz versions of movie themes have been around for a long time, but Dizzy makes these sound as though he has just thought up the idea—same as he did on his rather tardy bossa nova LP which was a real shot-in-the-arm to that tiring style.

The presidential candidate takes each theme into committee, where along with James Moody and the rest of his group, he works them over and brings out something unique and exciting in each one. My favorites were the "Exodus" and "Mondo Cane" themes.

"Walk on the Wild Side" comes in for the longest and most developed treatment.

Cover Your Spring Bulbs With Color

There's a colorful trick to bulb gardening that is not yet widely known. And it is so easy, there is no excuse for not giving it a try.

Cover your bulbs with color.

THIS IS accomplished by planting various annual flowers over the bulbs after you plant them. The annuals will bloom with the bulbs in spring. Long after the bulbs have faded, this colorful cover will continue to show itself.

What could be simpler and more effective?

There are many wonderful combinations of bulbs and annuals which are both eye catching and practical. Consider, for instance, a planting of King Alfred daffodils, their yellow trumpets growing up through a cover of white alyssum. How much more effective this would be than simply having the bulbs grow up from bare ground!

THERE ARE many other good combinations involving daffodils.

King Alfreds growing up through a cover of blue violas; the giant white Trumpet Daffodils growing up through the apricot violas or, believe it or not, through white alyssum. The white and white combination is really effective.

You can plan on new and different displays simply by checking the pictures of daffodils which every nurseryman has and picking the bulk cover to combine with it.

WHEN YOU grow tulips massed in formal beds, a bulb cover is not necessary, but when you grow them less formally, in small groups of one color, a cover crop can add greatly to the effect.

Try old faithful alyssum, both white and purple, for such use, as well as both violas and pansies. Also beautiful is a mix of Iceland Poppies with tulips. Both are tall, cup-shaped and brightly colored—look alikes in a sense, but distinctly different. With a combination of this sort, the Iceland Poppies bloom far in advance of the tulips, giving you color in winter and spring both.

Fairy Primrose, or primulas, are a nice combination with bulbs. With the taller daffodils and tulips especially, they make interesting contrasts. We find them especially effective with white Trumpet or white and yellow daffodils.

YOU CAN use any of the Fairy Primroses several shades: White, lavender, rose or red.

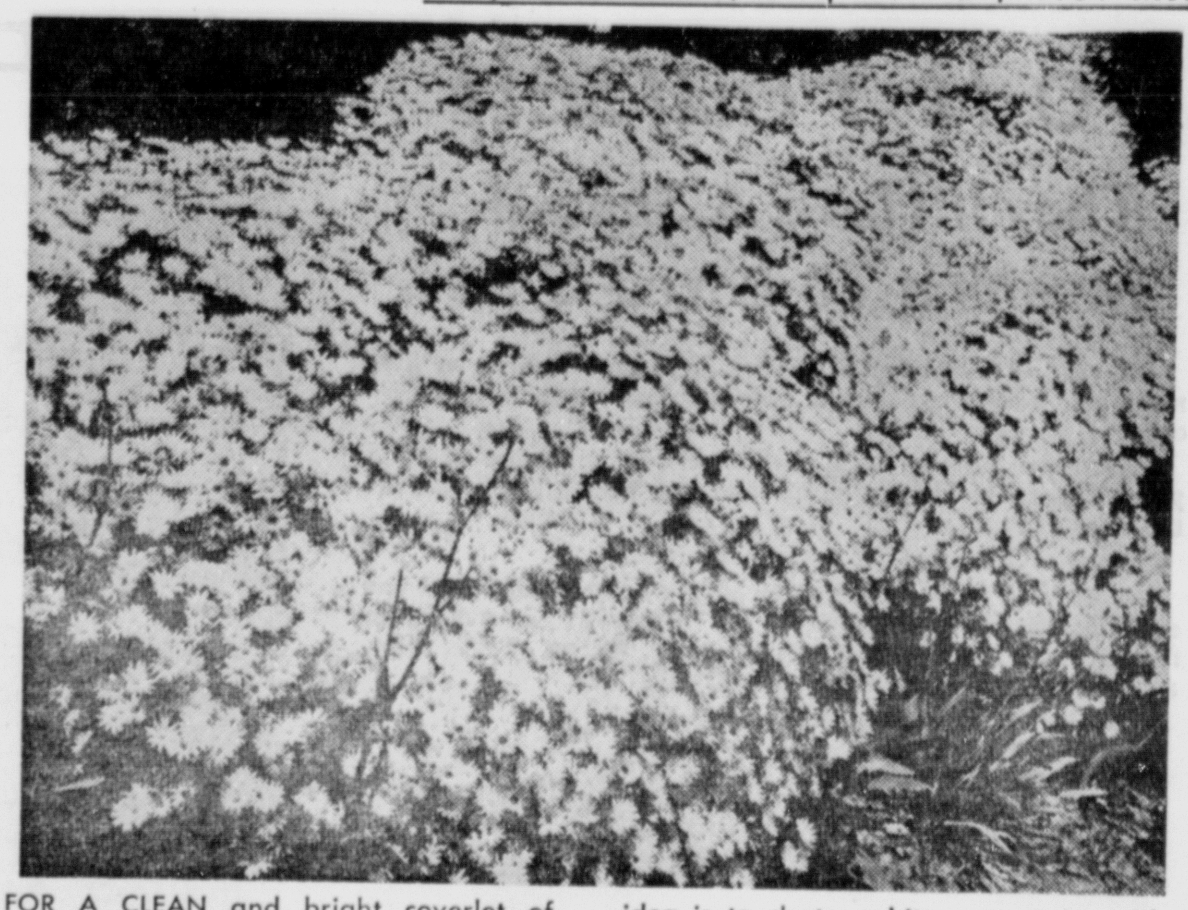
Violas and pansies, as indicated above, are excellent covers for the bulb bed. Try them not only with daffodils and tulips, but with hyacinths and wood hyacinths. These push up through the blanket of color and add their fragrant heads of white or blue or pink.

The list could go on and on with every combination more spectacular that the preceding one.

SOME OF you planted your spring-blooming bulbs a month or more ago, yet there is no reason you can't plant a bulb bed cover at this time. Take some care in preparing the ground for the cover plants. You wouldn't want to disturb the bulbs already planted.

If you haven't planted bulbs yet this fall, there's still time—though you shouldn't wait much longer.

In this case plant the cover crop the same day you plant the bulbs. The cover will bloom before the bulbs do, but who's to complain? It will still be blooming when the bulbs do show color.



FOR A CLEAN and bright coverlet of color over your bulb bed, try marguerites. Mass them for a carpet-like appearance once your bulbs push through. Another idea is to cluster white marguerites side by side with a cluster of yellow daffodils. (Photo courtesy of the California Assn. of Nurserymen)

TULIP TIP

A tip for those planning a late fall-early winter planting of tulips:

Keep your bulbs in the refrigerator for about two weeks, prior to planting. The result: Longer, studier, more attractive stems.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Plant perennials for spring bloom. Delphinium, Day Lily, Sweet William, Canterbury Bells, Coral Bells and many others may go in now.
- All manner of shrubs can be planted in November. Camellias and azaleas are good bets because they will bloom in winter and spring to give you quick rewards.
- While you are at the nursery picking out Christmas gifts, put in your order for bareroot stock. Mid-December is the start of the bareroot season. This means that all manner of things may then be planted at less cost and less effort than at any other time. Roses are the big item, but so are fruit trees, shade trees, many spring-flowering shrubs and a host of spring flowering trees.
- There are many items in nurseries which make good gifts for gardeners. In fact, it is almost impossible to find a nursery item which doesn't make a good gift for someone. In addition to blooming plants, there are garden tools, garden books, spray equipment, attractive planters and many other possibilities. Check with your nurseryman to give yourself new ideas. Reserve what you want now before the big Christmas rush. You will then be assured of getting just what you want for that special friend.

Some of those projects are pictured here.

If there is one—or more—that interests you, simply send one dime for each pattern you desire (to cover costs of handling) to the American Plywood Assn., 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, and be sure to specify the plan or plans you want.

But better act at once, for time is growing short.

A SMALL CHAIR can save a lot of wear and tear on grown-up's furniture, and gives the children their very own place from which to watch their favorite television shows. It takes very little time and only half a sheet of plywood to build a chair. Write for Plan 64-570, enclosing a dime.

THIS LITTLE WORK DESK, carefully designed with the toddler set in mind, is just right for big crayons and little fingers. Simple to build, the desk unit can help develop correct work and study habits. The seat folds under the work surface for easy storage. It is one of the "do-it-yourself" Christmas gift patterns available from the American Plywood Assn., 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, for a dime. Ask for Plan 64-560.

A RECORD STORAGE CABINET is the ideal gift for the teen-ager of the family, whose record collections invariably outgrow the available facilities. The project requires but one sheet of fir plywood and one 10-foot length of two-by-three lumber. Ask the plywood association for Plan 64-550.

THIS DO-IT-YOURSELF toy plan is almost as much fun for Dad to build as it is for the kids to use. It's a series of boxes that are scaled to look like an engine with a two-car train, and that can be painted to resemble the real thing. When not used as a toy, the train becomes a roomy series of storage boxes for smaller toys. American Plywood Assn. offers the plans with materials list and cutting diagram for a dime. Ask for Plan 64-590.

Lacquer Has Its Advantages And Its Disadvantages

Durable, heat-resistant and waterproof lacquer is one of the finest of finishes.

A combined advantage and disadvantage of lacquer is that it dries quickly, almost instantly. Because of this, it picks up less dust from the air and permits several applications in a single day. At the same time, the fast-drying quality can mean trouble in attempting to get a smooth coat.

BEFORE lacquering anything for the first time, it is wise to practice on several pieces of scrap wood.

Lacquer should be thinned about 50-50 with lacquer thinner for most applications, varying the percentages as you desire once you have learned the technique. Buy brushing or spraying lacquer depending on the equipment being used.

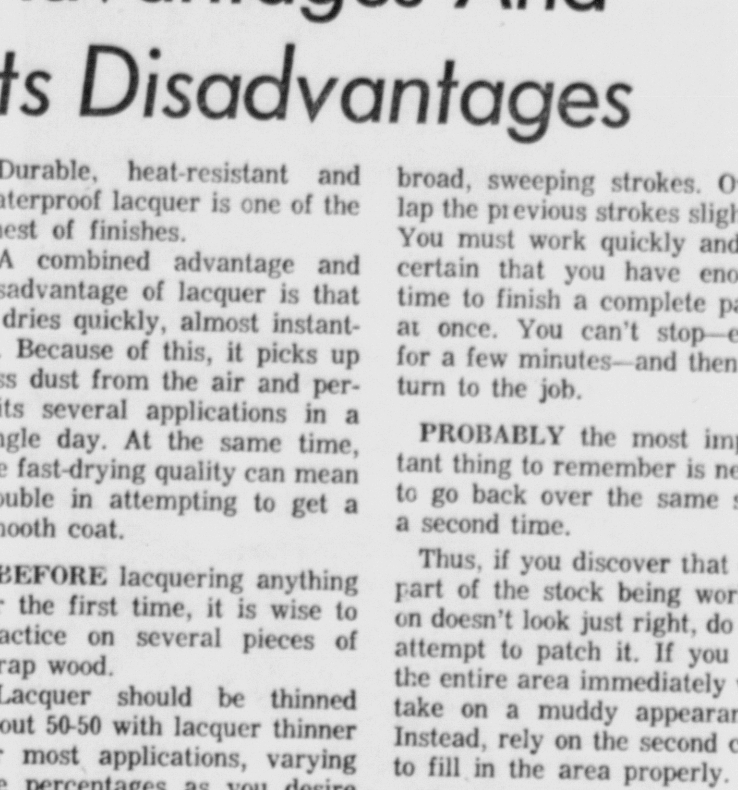
The brush is dipped into lacquer and applied generously in broad, sweeping strokes. Overlap the previous strokes slightly. You must work quickly and be certain that you have enough time to finish a complete panel at once. You can't stop—even for a few minutes—and then return to the job.

PROBABLY the most important thing to remember is never to go back over the same spot a second time.

Thus, if you discover that one part of the stock being worked on doesn't look just right, do not attempt to patch it. If you do, the entire area immediately will take on a muddy appearance. Instead, rely on the second coat to fill in the area properly.

There are two schools of thought on whether lacquer should be sanded between coats.

LACQUER IS volatile. Use it only where there is plenty of ventilation.



HERE'S AN ATTRACTICE idea for your holiday home decoration—an illuminated "outdoor greeting card." Send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Three Wisemen Greeting Pattern No. 560. The full-size Easi-Bild pattern provides complete tracing and painting guides. A string of outdoor Christmas lights gives you the soft illumination that lights up the "Greetings" and silhouettes the wisemen against the sky. No special wiring or electrical experience is needed.

The TV Log For The Week

SHELLEY WINTERS makes one of her infrequent television appearances when she guest stars on "Ben Casey" Monday at 10 p.m. on KGO-TV.

New TV Tributes To JFK

Three more television memorial tributes to John F. Kennedy are scheduled by Bay Area television stations for tomorrow.

KRON-TV will carry, at 6:30 p.m., the National Broadcasting Co. network program, "John F. Kennedy Remembered."

PRODUCER Lou Hazam says that show is concerned with "showing President Kennedy as a person — the wit, humor, warmth, intelligence of a very vibrant fellow — the 'essential' Kennedy. Rather than a political study, it will be an essay on a human being."

Chet Huntley, David Brinkley and other NBC news correspondents will recall, aided by film, the high points of Kennedy's brief White House years. Frank McGee will be the off-camera narrator.

The American Broadcasting Co. tribute—"John F. Kennedy: His Two Worlds"—will be shown on KGO-TV at 6:30 p.m.

At 1 p.m. KTVU-TV will carry a musical tribute to the late President.

The memorial telecast will be a performance of the Brahms Requiem by the Temple Choir of Oakland's First United Presbyterian Church. The Requiem was one of the major compositions played on television during the time Kennedy's body lay in state a year ago.

THE CHOIR will sing the English translation of the composition, the text of which was chosen by Brahms from the German Bible.

The Columbia Broadcasting System tribute to President Kennedy was carried earlier this week on KPIX-TV.
